

Victory Is Sweet for Humphrey

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — For Hubert Horatio Humphrey, the man who came back, this was sweet victory indeed. There he stood Wednesday night, waving, laughing, pointing happily to friends he recognized in the milling crowd below, as thousands cheered in this giant convention hall. Everything had gone right for Hubert Humphrey at last. Not only had President Johnson finally picked him as his vice presidential running mate, Johnson had made it all the lovelier by performing an unheard-of political chore, coming from Washington to nominate Humphrey in person.

Watching Humphrey in all his glory, it seemed impossible that only four short years ago he looked to be washed up, finished. But let's go back for a moment, to that rainy night of May 10, 1960, in Charleston, W.Va. This was the windup of a rough, tough campaign. Sen. John F. Kennedy and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota were the two contestants, and they hit each other with all they had. No one who took part in or who watched that West Virginia Democratic presidential primary will ever forget it. All the odds were expected to favor Humphrey.

He was a Protestant running against a Roman Catholic in Protestant country. He spoke the plain, homey language hill folks could understand. But the Kennedy resources and the Kennedy political knowledge and the combined energy of the restless Kennedy family changed what looked like certain defeat into spectacular victory. Humphrey offered his congratulations, and Kennedy, looking as if he were a little embarrassed at so solid a knockout blow, said: "It was very nice of you to come over, Hubert."

But Humphrey isn't one to sulk. Sen. Pierre Salinger, who as Kennedy's press secretary in West Virginia was on the other side of the primary fence, had only nice things to say about him Wednesday night as he seconded the nomination. Humphrey worked hard in the 1960 fall campaign, Salinger said, and contributed to Kennedy's victory. So here Humphrey was Wednesday night, so gay, so effervescent, so exuberant, lapping up the applause. And recalling what happened just four years ago, it was easy to see why he loved it.

Massive Pep Rally Slated by Democrats

Chrysler Is Target

Auto Union Set For Sept. 9 Strike

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union has singled out Chrysler Corp. as its No. 1 strike target in efforts to secure new contracts for the nation's half-million auto plant workers. UAW President Walter Reuther told newsmen Wednesday night that the walkout at Chrysler would begin at 10 a.m. Sept. 9 if no settlement is forthcoming by that time.

Reuther said Chrysler, General Motors and Ford — the auto industry's Big Three — all had adopted a "narrow, selfish attitude" in negotiations and are denying workers their fair share of record-breaking profits. The union's contracts with all three firms expire Monday, but Reuther said the strike deadline was set beyond Labor Day to allow several extra days at the bargaining table in efforts to avoid a walkout.

President Johnson is expected to open his campaign in Detroit's Cadillac Square on Labor Day.

Observers have pointed out that with a auto strike in progress, the President might have found such an appearance before a labor rally to be embarrassing.

Reuther visited President Johnson in the White House Wednesday, but he denied that the President's Labor Day plans had any influence on the decision to set Sept. 9 — two days after the holiday — as the strike date.

Pointing out that Chrysler is the nation's seventh largest corporation, Reuther said the firm was selected because it had what he termed "a economic and moral obligation" to repay the UAW for 1961 contract concessions.

At that time, he contended, Chrysler was in deep financial trouble and there was a question of whether the company was going to survive.

Chrysler is now the second most profitable company in the auto industry, Reuther said, earning $114.4 million after taxes during the first six months of this year. This, he said, was a 26 per cent return on its investment.

Jackie Is Given Hearty Welcome

ATLANTIC CITY (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy was greeted with a hearty round of applause at the airport today when she flew in for a reception in her honor.

Wearing a white coat, Mrs. Kennedy, the wife of the assassinated president, descended first from the Kennedy family plane, the Caroline. She was followed by other members of the Kennedy clan, including sisters-in-law Jean Smith, Pat Lawford, and Eunice Shriver.

Mrs. Kennedy was met at the plane by Sen. Pierre Salinger of California, her late husband's press secretary, and whisked away into a waiting limousine.

Two of the participating doctors had treated Johnson after his 1955 heart attack. They are Dr. J. Willis Hurst of Atlanta, Ga., and Dr. J. C. Cain of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.

The others are Dr. George G. Burkley, a Navy rear admiral who is official White House physician, and Dr. James M. Young, an Army doctor on the White House staff.

They said Johnson has "no symptoms," that his blood pressure is normal, and that all other aspects of the examination were normal.

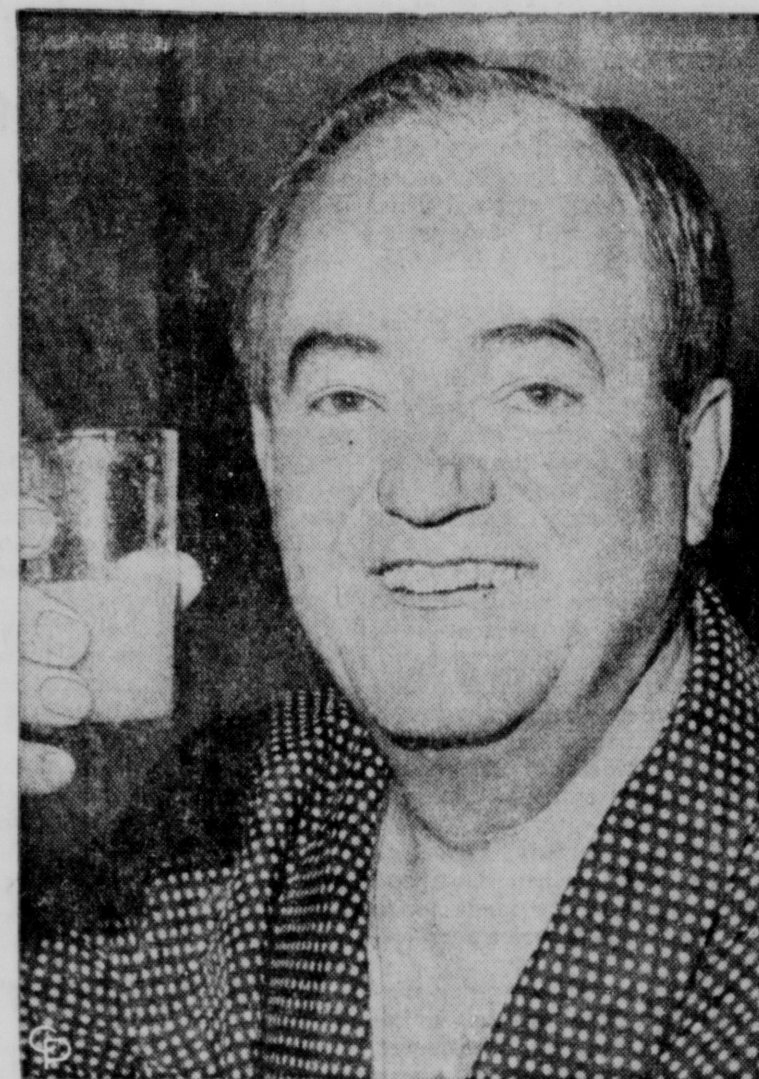

The verdict of four doctors on his physical condition was disclosed by the President Wednesday as he led newsmen on a 4½-mile hike, talking as he circled 15 laps around the back driveway of the White House.

Loping easily along in the high-humidity heat Johnson convinced less-athletic newsmen of the doctors' finding that his "exercise tolerance continues to be superb" despite a serious heart attack in 1955.

He took a few more fast laps later with his choice for a running mate, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota; took time out for an informal birthday party at which his staff presented him with a desk; and capped an active day with a flight to the convention city which lasted into the early morning hours.

The physical examination which Johnson announced was the first he had reported since taking office last November. He underwent it on Monday, after a 9-1/2 hour tour of the White House driveway which had set his record up to that time.

LBJ, 56 Today, Physically Fit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, 56 years old today, has his party's overwhelming endorsement for another term in office and his doctors' assurance he is physically fit for "an active vigorous life."

For a birthday party, he was assured a rousing reception from the Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City, where he goes tonight to accept formally the full-term nomination handed him without contest Wednesday night.

Johnson Taps Sen. Humphrey

Pair To Outline Plan for Victory

ATLANTIC CITY (AP)—Democrats close their convention — and get a quick start on their campaign—with a massive pep rally tonight honoring their new first team — Lyndon B. Johnson and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

In speeches accepting Wednesday night's nominations, the President and his running mate will outline for the party legions their plans for what Johnson called an "overwhelming victory" against Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Then almost as soon as the curtain drops on their bedlam by the Boardwalk, the President and Humphrey plan to head for the LBJ Ranch in Texas to plot their autumn strategy. "There in the shade of the live oaks on the banks of the Pedernales, we will talk over our duty for the next few weeks," said Johnson.

But before packing up, delegates and party officials will salute the President's 56th birthday with a fireworks spectacular and a huge party for some 4,000 guests.

The First Lady started the party round this morning with a post-nomination champagne breakfast for the press, where she table-hopped and talked of hitting the campaign trail herself for the Johnson-Humphrey ticket.

Before the hoopla, before the shouts and the fireworks, the Democrats will pause to honor the memory of three of their fallen heroes, House Speaker Sam Rayburn, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and John F. Kennedy.

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, the President's widow, was to arrive today. She does not intend to attend the convention program but will greet delegates at a reception.

Until Wednesday night, the convention's course was dully predictable, then Johnson gave it a dramatic turn by breaking a string of precedents.

The President had held on to his secret that Humphrey was his choice for the vice presidential nomination until he was ready to board a plane to Atlantic City. Humphrey, who had flown to Washington at the President's command, was at his side.

Taking the senator by the arm, Johnson walked over to newsmen standing behind a barrier and said: "Meet the next vice president."

The world thus learned of the selection, about three hours before many delegates to this convention knew that it had been made. No modern president had ever kept counsel about a running mate so long.

Johnson, Humphrey and Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., who also had been summoned to the white house from Atlantic City, then boarded a plane. Johnson watched on television while Gov. John F. Connally of Texas placed his name in nomination.

The reason for Dodd's quick trip remained a mystery. The

NFO Boycott To Continue

Demonstrations To Be Curtailed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — National Farmers Organization leaders in Ohio have promised to continue their boycott of livestock markets in an effort to win minimum price guarantees.

But Ohio members will ease up on picketing and demonstrations, leaders said Wednesday.

The decision to cut down the demonstrations came at the suggestion of Oren Lee Staley, the NFO's national president in Iowa.

Ohio members will continue to withhold their cattle and at the same time keep up their observation of livestock markets to determine cattle receipts.

William L. Davis of Mt. Sterling, Route 1, assistant national organizational director for the NFO in this area, pointed out that the demonstrations that have taken place in Ohio in the last few days were not arranged by the national office.

He said NFO leaders seemed concerned that continued picketing and demonstrations would result in violence.

"Farmers in their local communities," he said, "want to find out whether farmer cooperative associations and privately owned sales yards are in sympathy with the farmers receiving a better price, or if they are working for the processors. Farmers are now able to make their own decisions."

The NFO campaign is designed to win a guaranteed price for cattle from the processors. Producers then would sell at the guaranteed price or at the market price, whichever is higher. The market itself showed some fluctuations in prices and was not as high as NFO members had hoped they would be at this period of the campaign.

Yesterday, hogs at 85 central and western Ohio markets had receipts of 5,800, down from the 6,200 of Tuesday, and selling at 50 cents to $1 lower, mostly 75 cents off on butcher hogs. Cattle prices were steady in the Columbus livestock area at $28 a hundred for prime steers.

Muriel Told Put on Best Bib, Tucker

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — It was 6:35 Wednesday night when the phone rang in Mrs. Hubert Humphrey's hotel room.

The White House was calling. "Hello, Muriel," said President Johnson. "You looked very pretty on TV this afternoon."

"We're going to nominate your boy tonight... I want you to put on your best bib and tucker for him."

"Bless your heart, Mr. President!" exclaimed the wife of the Minnesota senator who was to be Johnson's running mate. "I'm going to put on my best bib and tucker for both of you!"

"We're taking good care of him for you," said the President before he called Humphrey to the phone.

Said Mrs. Humphrey to the senator: "If he pulls more of these, I'll have to be sure I have a chair under me!"

No Problems Encountered At Livestock Auction Here

Yesterday's auction at the Bowling Stock Yards was conducted in a normal, quiet manner, with no demonstrations by National Farmers Organization members.

Frank Bowling Sr., anticipating possible trouble, had built a fence around his unloading docks. Only trucks with legitimate loads of livestock were permitted to enter.

The area was kept under close surveillance by Circleville Police.

A small group of NFO members quietly congregated near the entrance to the unloading docks.

THE NFO personnel recorded license numbers of all trucks entering the yards. They also tabulated an estimated count of the number of livestock brought to the auction.

Miles Kahler, president of the Pickaway County NFO Chapter, stated no demonstration or picketing action had ever been planned at the Bowling Stock Yards by local officers.

According to Kahler, Oren Lee Staley, national president, had requested all members of the organization in Ohio to delay such action as of last Tuesday.

The only orders from national headquarters, Kahler said, were for members to continue holding their livestock on the farms, plus the obtaining of a count of livestock being marketed.

William L. Davis, assistant national organizational director for the NFO in this area, announced that demonstrations that have taken place the past few days in Ohio were not arranged by the national office.

In a prepared statement released today, Kahler said:

"The Pickaway County Chapter of the National Farmers' Organization was greatly shocked to learn that the Bowling Livestock Yards doubted the integrity of NFO officials."

"On Monday they (NFO officers) met with Frank Bowling and his son to ask their cooperation in not holding the livestock auction yesterday."

"After a lengthy discussion, Bowling stated he would not be able to close the sale..."

BOWLING reported today that 612 head of cattle had been consigned for yesterday's auction.

This is a "normal" run, according to Bowling. He said between 500 and 700 cattle move through the yards each auction day.

The bulk of the livestock sold through the local auction is destined for slaughter.

In explaining the NFO holding action, Kahler said the members are only seeking a fair return for their product.

"We feel that we may well be the last generation of the family type farm," the Pickaway Chapter president stated. "The next step is corporation farms."

NFO officials say some processors have already signed contracts with the organization to purchase their products at a guaranteed price.

HOWEVER, as was pointed out by Kahler yesterday, these contracts do not go into effect until the NFO can provide 60 per cent of the total farm production.

If they achieve their goal, processors will first fill their needs from NFO members. The remainder of their livestock (or grain) will be purchased on the open market from non-members.

It is the contention of the NFO there is no surplus in any farm commodity, with the exception of hard red winter wheat.

Wallace Sees Dixie Cold on Humphrey

CLEVELAND (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama said today the nomination of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey as President Johnson's running mate will hurt the Democratic Party in the South in the November election.

Wallace, here for an appearance at the annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, told a news conference neither President Johnson nor his Republican opponent, Sen. Barry Goldwater, "can take the South for granted this time."

Asked how he would vote, Gov. Wallace replied: "I don't know. I'm going to wait and see, just like all the rest of the people in Alabama."

Ohio Dems Boom Ticket, Put in Plug for Cleveland

ATLANTIC CITY (AP)—Placard-waving Ohio delegates added their salute to President Johnson and his running mate, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, in tumultuous demonstrations in the Democratic National Convention Wednesday night.

They also used the occasion to plug Cleveland for the party's 1968 convention. Signs reading "Cleveland in 1968" were mingled among bobbing Johnson and Humphrey banners.

Although some Ohio delegates had said earlier they thought Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota would be Johnson's choice, Humphrey's selection drew Ohio approval.

State chairman William L. Coleman, who had said all along that Humphrey would be it, praised the vice presidential nominee as "exceptionally qualified."

Today's schedule included a campaign rally for Sen. Stephen Young at the Seaside Hotel. Some of Young's Senate colleagues and several governors were among those invited.

Triumvirate Is Named To Run Riotous Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The ruling military junta named a triumvirate of generals to rule this war-torn nation today as armed mobs roamed the city, street battles raged, and hospitals tried to cope with the dead and wounded from a bloody clash between troops and pro-government Roman Catholic demonstrators.

No accurate casualty total was available, but at least eight and possibly 10 or more demonstrators were killed and scores wounded in the city-wide rioting.

Chosen to run South Viet Nam for the next 60 days were Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, who resigned the presidency under pressure from Buddhist and student demonstrators Tuesday; Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh, whom Khanh succeeded as chief of state Aug. 16; and Lt. Gen.

Tran Thien Khiem, for defense minister.

Leaflets signed by the full 60-man council said the council now has been dissolved and the generals and colonels would go back to their military duties. A provisional national congress to be picked within two months will elect a new chief of state and establish other national organizations.

Joint general staff headquarters, the radio station, the central market and a technical high school were the focal points of battle. Roving mobs of students, Buddhists and Catholic refugees clashed at several other points in the city.

The vicious street battles continued into the night. A mob of 2,000 mostly Catholic demonstrators who triggered the bloody firing at joint general staff headquarters in the afternoon had swelled to nearly 4,000 after nightfall.

The end was not in sight. Troops and police did not interfere in most of the street battles and lawless mobs roamed at will.

The military junta's formation of a triumvirate and the announced abolition of the military revolutionary council apparently did not satisfy the demonstrators. In fact the demonstrations appeared to have degenerated into pure and simple mob violence.

Auto Union Set For Sept. 9 Strike

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union has singled out Chrysler Corp. as its No. 1 strike target in efforts to secure new contracts for the nation's half-million auto plant workers. UAW President Walter Reuther told newsmen Wednesday night that the walkout at Chrysler would begin at 10 a.m. Sept. 9 if no settlement is forthcoming by that time.

Reuther said Chrysler, General Motors and Ford — the auto industry's Big Three — all had adopted a "narrow, selfish attitude" in negotiations and are denying workers their fair share of record-breaking profits. The union's contracts with all three firms expire Monday, but Reuther said the strike deadline was set beyond Labor Day to allow several extra days at the bargaining table in efforts to avoid a walkout.

Observers have pointed out that with a auto strike in progress, the President might have found such an appearance before a labor rally to be embarrassing.

Reuther visited President Johnson in the White House Wednesday, but he denied that the President's Labor Day plans had any influence on the decision to set Sept. 9 — two days after the holiday — as the strike date.

Pointing out that Chrysler is the nation's seventh largest corporation, Reuther said the firm was selected because it had what he termed "a economic and moral obligation" to repay the UAW for 1961 contract concessions.

At that time, he contended, Chrysler was in deep financial trouble and there was a question of whether the company was going to survive.

Chrysler is now the second most profitable company in the auto industry, Reuther said, earning $114.4 million after taxes during the first six months of this year. This, he said, was a 26 per cent return on its investment.

"We feel that we may well be the last generation of the family type farm," the Pickaway Chapter president stated. "The next step is corporation farms."

NFO officials say some processors have already signed contracts with the organization to purchase their products at a guaranteed price. . . .

HOWEVER, as was pointed out by Kahler yesterday, these contracts do not go into effect until the NFO can provide 60 per cent of the total farm production.

If they achieve their goal, processors will first fill their needs from NFO members. The remainder of their livestock (or grain) will be purchased on the open market from non-members.

It is the contention of the NFO there is no surplus in any farm commodity, with the exception of hard red winter wheat.

Wallace Sees Dixie Cold on Humphrey

CLEVELAND (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama said today the nomination of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey as President Johnson's running mate will hurt the Democratic Party in the South in the November election.

Wallace, here for an appearance at the annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, told a news conference neither President Johnson nor his Republican opponent, Sen. Barry Goldwater, "can take the South for granted this time."

Asked how he would vote, Gov. Wallace replied: "I don't know. I'm going to wait and see, just like all the rest of the people in Alabama."

Ohio Dems Boom Ticket, Put in Plug for Cleveland

ATLANTIC CITY (AP)—Placard-waving Ohio delegates added their salute to President Johnson and his running mate, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, in tumultuous demonstrations in the Democratic National Convention Wednesday night.

They also used the occasion to plug Cleveland for the party's 1968 convention. Signs reading "Cleveland in 1968" were mingled among bobbing Johnson and Humphrey banners.

Although some Ohio delegates had said earlier they thought Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota would be Johnson's choice, Humphrey's selection drew Ohio approval.

State chairman William L. Coleman, who had said all along that Humphrey would be it, praised the vice presidential nominee as "exceptionally qualified."

Today's schedule included a campaign rally for Sen. Stephen Young at the Seaside Hotel. Some of Young's Senate colleagues and several governors were among those invited.

One of Ohio's prominent delegates, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Anthony J. Celebrezze, told a senior citizens gathering Wednesday to "remember in November" that Republicans have blocked the Democratic Medicare bill in Congress.

Predicting the bill's eventual passage, Celebrezze said to the elderly group: "All you are asking for your government and your Congress is dignity in your old age."

Earlier Wednesday, Coleman predicted that Ohio Democrats will face a tough campaign but will carry the state for President Johnson in the November election.

He conceded that the "white backlash" is a problem in Ohio, particularly in the Cleveland area. But he said, "The real issue is one of war and peace rather than backward and forward lash."

"The people must be told the facts of the campaign and we will carry Ohio by a safe margin," he said.

Triumvirate Is Named To Run Riotous Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The ruling military junta named a triumvirate of generals to rule this war-torn nation today as armed mobs roamed the city, street battles raged, and hospitals tried to cope with the dead and wounded from a bloody clash between troops and pro-government Roman Catholic demonstrators.

No accurate casualty total was available, but at least eight and possibly 10 or more demonstrators were killed and scores wounded in the city-wide rioting.

Chosen to run South Viet Nam for the next 60 days were Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, who resigned the presidency under pressure from Buddhist and student demonstrators Tuesday; Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh, whom Khanh succeeded as chief of state Aug. 16; and Lt. Gen.

Tran Thien Khiem, for defense minister.

Leaflets signed by the full 60-man council said the council now has been dissolved and the generals and colonels would go back to their military duties. A provisional national congress to be picked within two months will elect a new chief of state and establish other national organizations.

Joint general staff headquarters, the radio station, the central market and a technical high school were the focal points of battle. Roving mobs of students, Buddhists and Catholic refugees clashed at several other points in the city.

The vicious street battles continued into the night. A mob of 2,000 mostly Catholic demonstrators who triggered the bloody firing at joint general staff headquarters in the afternoon had swelled to nearly 4,000 after nightfall.

The end was not in sight. Troops and police did not interfere in most of the street battles and lawless mobs roamed at will.

The military junta's formation of a triumvirate and the announced abolition of the military revolutionary council apparently did not satisfy the demonstrators. In fact the demonstrations appeared to have degenerated into pure and simple mob violence.

Barry Says His Polls Show LBJ Out Far in Front

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater says his private polls show President Johnson well ahead in their race for the White House—but he adds there are "signs of improvement" for the Republican cause.

Goldwater told a news conference aboard a yacht off Catalina Island "the polls we see are 63-29, something like that. . . ."

"I wouldn't call that good, but I don't think the polls are too dependable any more."

"We have done some research in a way that other polls haven't," he added. "We come up with pretty much the same results but we also see some very good signs of improvement."

Lady Buys Hometown A Rack of Shotgun

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Lottie Shepherd, 92, read that the Oklahoma City police department was short on funds and needed an additional 25 shotguns.

She donated $1,700 Wednesday and explained, "We're getting to be such a big town we're getting to the point where we've got to be taken care of."

Hurricane Cleo Lashes Miami, Churns North

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Cleo smashed Miami with sledgehammer blows today, left the streets of the city looking like a battleground, then roared on northward up the heavily-populated southeast Florida coast.

Broadcasting towers toppled. Store windows exploded by hundreds, littering streets with merchandise and broken glass. Fallen trees blocked hundreds of streets.

No deaths were reported, but a looter shot by police was in critical condition in a hospital.

County Manager Irving G. McNayr said he would ask to have the city declared a disaster area. There was no estimate of damage to public buildings, but McNayr called it "quite serious."

A veteran policeman who was in Miami when the 1926 hurricane broke the big Florida land boom, said the storm was the worst since then.

Numerous fires broke out and couldn't be fought in the 115-mile an hour fury of the wind. One warehouse was destroyed. Fires still were breaking out when dawn revealed the raw scars of the hurricane.

Cleo, howling and moaning up from the south, slammed hurricane force winds into Miami at 2:20 a.m. One hour later, power failure plunged the city into darkness.

After crossing Miami, the eye of the hurricane moved on northward across Hallandale, Hollywood, Fort Lauderdale, Boca Raton and West Palm Beach. Hurricane warning flags flew on up the coast to Cape Kennedy and gale warnings were issued as far north as Daytona Beach.

At 10 a.m., winds of 105 miles per hour were hitting West Palm Beach.

At Fort Lauderdale, a 20-by-40 foot sign over a shopping center vanished. Gusts strewn trees across roads and made shore route A-1A impassable with sand-drifts.

Cleo's powerful winds pushed a railroad freight car eight miles from south of Hollywood to Fort Lauderdale. The runaway car sheared off one side of the old Dania station and then collided with an automobile, seriously injuring the driver, an elderly man.

Officials said the station, a frame structure, had been lifted to the edge of the tracks by Cleo.

At Pompano Beach, two persons were trapped at the height of the storm when the wind crumpled their trailer home. Rescuers got them out unharmed.

At Cape Kennedy, six space rockets were lashed down and other preparations made for a big blow at America's spaceport.

Looting began soon after windows began to explode. In the fury of the storm, the thieves easily eluded police.

Key Biscayne, an island with a large residential colony across Biscayne Bay from Miami, was largely evacuated before the storm struck and high tides blocked the causeway to the mainland.

But the fate of the island remained uncertain as boiling tides continued to lash the beaches.

Collins Avenue, site of Miami Beach's famous "hotel row," was a mass of fallen neon signs, trees and window glass.

Fifty windows were smashed at the Fontainebleau Hotel and 700 guests fled their rooms into the lobby. Two guests, two porters and a hotel engineer were hospitalized for treatment of cuts.

The 85-foot yacht Electromatic broke loose from its mooring and crashed into television's famed houseboat, "Surfside Six," in Indian Creek in front of the Fontainebleau.

Thousands spent the night in shelters. Fifty-five pregnant women were admitted to Mt. Sinai Hospital before the hurricane struck.

In the first gales ahead of the hurricane, two trustees working on the roof of the county jail took advantage of the confusion and fled barefooted into the storm.

Hospitals held staffs overtime to treat the injured. Many were reported injured by flying glass and other objects.

Money Taken From Safe at Auto Firm

Circleville police today were investigating a safe burglary at the Yates Motor Co., 1220 S. Court St.

Officers said $246.53 was taken from the safe. They said the vault was "punched."

Patrolman William Brungs, conducting an investigation throughout the morning, said the method of entry into the building was not immediately determined.

David Niebert, an agent with the Bureau of Criminal Investigation at London, arrived here this morning to help with the probe.

According to officers, nothing else was reported taken other than the money from the safe.

Dems To Cite Dead Leaders

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The Democratic party honors the memory tonight of three leaders who died since its last national convention: Sam Rayburn, Eleanor Roosevelt, and John F. Kennedy.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, brother of the late president, will introduce a film that depicts the achievements of Kennedy from his inaugural until his assassination last Nov. 22.

U.N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson will pay tribute to Mrs. Roosevelt, the widow of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. She died on Nov. 7, 1962.

James A. Farley, former postmaster general and political chieftain during the Roosevelt era, will lead the memorial to Rayburn, the House speaker who died on Nov. 16, 1961.

Four Localites To Be OSU Grads

An Ohio State University graduating class of 1,217 will include four from the Circleville area when degrees are presented 9 a. m. Friday in St. John Arena.

Dr. A. Blair Knapp, president of Granville's Denison University, will deliver the commencement address.

Area graduates are Ronald L. Hoffman, who will receive a BS degree in agriculture; William D. McCoard, BS in social welfare; Judith A. Rutzahn, BS in education; and Howard G. Weaver, master of arts.

Barry's View Of A-Arms Under Fire

CLEVELAND (AP) — Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus R. Vance said today that to label tactical nuclear weapons as "conventional" — a description used by Sen. Barry Goldwater — is "dangerously misleading and totally inappropriate."

Vance asserted that typical battlefield nuclear weapons now have destructive power several times greater than the strategic bombs which wiped out two Japanese cities in World War II.

His address was prepared for the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention, at which the Republican presidential nominee spoke Tuesday.

The particular target was Goldwater's proposal that a way should be developed to provide the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) "with its own stock of small, tactical nuclear battlefield weapons."

Goldwater told the veterans that "these small conventional nuclear weapons are no more powerful than the firepower you have faced on the battlefield."

Vance zeroed in on this portion of Goldwater's speech. He did not directly mention Goldwater or his speech, arriving at the issue by saying there were 291,000 American battle deaths in World War II and in case of all-out nuclear war the toll of "Americans alone would be equal to 300 World War II's."

Cincy Awaits 'Fantabulous' Beatle Crew

CINCINNATI (AP) — Four mop-topped lads from Liverpool headed into Cincinnati today and, to use a teen-age phrase, this metropolitan area faced a frantic and "fantabulous" time.

"They're 'gear,' man," — ("the mostest") — signed 14-year-old Karol Burgess, squealing in delight at the hardly-expected acquisition of two tickets to tonight's show by the Beatles before a capacity 13,000 in Cincinnati Gardens.

Some 100 policemen were ordered to duty around Cincinnati Gardens, some to report hours before the 8 p.m. opening; approximately 40 others were assigned to their uptown hotel and another 100 private guards were employed by a group of local disc jockeys who are sponsoring the show.

Privately, the bluecoats had words more earthy adult than "fantabulous" for the prospect of being jostled by screaming youngsters throughout the afternoon and evening. Still, that feeling was lessened somewhat, most of all among badge-wearers who are the fathers of teenagers.

"My mother tells me girls of her day used to do much the same thing when Rudolph Valentino showed up anywhere," one young policeman mused. "I guess each generation has its idol. With me it was the three stooges! They wore mop wigs, you know!"

Princess Abandons Sinking Boat

OLBIA, Sardinia (AP) — Britain's Princess Margaret, her husband and the Aga Khan abandoned a yacht which hit a rock in heavy seas off Sardinia, and reached shore safely in rubber lifeboats, Italian authorities said today.

Mario Castellucci, chief administrative officer for this vacation area, said the accident happened Wednesday while the three, and the Aga Khan's French lawyer, Andre Ardure, of Paris, were on an outing aboard the Aga Khan's pleasure boat, the Amaloun.

Castellucci said the small yacht, which has a five-man crew, hit a rock about 75 yards off shore from Capriccioli, a northern Sardinian beach area under development by the Aga Khan.

"Because the boat began taking water and listing, those aboard decided to go ashore in rubber lifeboats. No one jumped or fell in the water, and there was no excitement," Castellucci said.

The princess and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, have been the Aga Khan's guests at his hotel at Cola di Volpe, during a three-week holiday.

Johnson Taps

Connecticut senator said he had told the president to "include me out" of consideration for the vice presidential nomination.

Speculation among high party officials was that the Connecticut senator had been offered appointment as Attorney General when Robert F. Kennedy steps out of that office to make the race for the Senate in New York. This might bring National Chairman John M. Bailey into the picture as a possible successor if Dodd accepted the Cabinet post.

Johnson hadn't been scheduled to visit the convention until today. But as soon as his nomination was acclaimed with a tumultuous, banner waving, flag-flying demonstration, he strode to the platform.

Flanked by his wife and two daughters, he said he was happy about the honor done him. He said he would be back to tell the delegates, who bulged the hall to overflowing, about his plans for "an overwhelming victory for our party and our nation" in the November ballot.

He complimented the delegates on a platform "on which I am proud to stand" and on their settlement of delegate seating squabbles in the Mississippi and Alabama delegations.

Then the President laid low another precedent by launching into a stem-winding nominating speech for Humphrey. He said he had spent "long and prayerful hours" and had consulted with party leaders from every section of the country before deciding on "the man best qualified to assume the office of the President of the United States should that day come."

Then, after holding back the name for tantalizing seconds, he came out with the name: "Senator Hubert Humphrey."

Something akin to genuine pandemonium broke out as the convention learned officially for the first time the answer to the big question which had been in every delegate's mind for days.

Humphrey, accompanied by his family, marched up to the podium and Johnson, stepping aside, let his running mate have his time in the spotlights.

After the convention had adjourned for the night Johnson flew back to Washington, obviously cherishing the belief that he had the strongest possible ticket and an nearly unified party behind him.

Politically the choice of Humphrey offered the party liberals a glittering prize to offset all of the efforts the President had made to keep Southern conservatives in camp and to prevent a walkout by Southern dissidents.

Johnson's name was formally placed in nomination by Govs. Connally and Edmund G. Brown of California.

After crossing Miami, the eye of the hurricane moved on northward across Hallandale, Hollywood, Fort Lauderdale, Boca Raton and West Palm Beach. Hurricane warning flags flew on up the coast to Cape Kennedy and gale warnings were issued as far north as Daytona Beach.

At 10 a.m., winds of 105 miles per hour were hitting West Palm Beach.

At Fort Lauderdale, a 20-by-40 foot sign over a shopping center vanished. Gusts strewn trees across roads and made shore route A-1a impassable with sand-drifts.

Cleo's powerful winds pushed a railroad freight car eight miles from south of Hollywood to Fort Lauderdale. The runaway car sheared off one side of the old Dania station and then collided with an automobile, seriously injuring the driver, an elderly man.

Officials said the station, a frame structure, had been lifted to the edge of the tracks by Cleo.

At Pompano Beach, two persons were trapped at the height of the storm when the wind crumpled their trailer home. Rescuers got them out unharmed.

At Cape Kennedy, six space rockets were lashed down and other preparations made for a big blow at America's spaceport.

Looting began soon after windows began to explode. In the fury of the storm, the thieves easily eluded police.

Key Biscayne, an island with a large residential colony across Biscayne Bay from Miami, was largely evacuated before the storm struck and high tides blocked the causeway to the mainland.

But the fate of the island remained uncertain as boiling tides continued to lash the beaches.

Collins Avenue, site of Miami Beach's famous "hotel row," was a mass of fallen neon signs, trees and window glass.

Fifty windows were smashed at the Fontainebleau Hotel and 700 guests fled their rooms into the lobby. Two guests, two porters and a hotel engineer were hospitalized for treatment of cuts.

The 85-foot yacht Electromatic broke loose from its mooring and crashed into television's famed houseboat, "Surfside Six," in Indian Creek in front of the Fontainebleau.

Thousands spent the night in shelters. Fifty-five pregnant women were admitted to Mt. Sinai Hospital before the hurricane struck.

In the first gales ahead of the hurricane, two trustees working on the roof of the county jail took advantage of the confusion and fled barefooted into the storm.

Hospitals held staffs overtime to treat the injured. Many were reported injured by flying glass and other objects.

Money Taken From Safe at Auto Firm

Circleville police today were investigating a safe burglary at the Yates Motor Co., 1220 S. Court St.

Officers said $246.53 was taken from the safe. They said the vault was "punched."

Patrolman William Brungs, conducting an investigation throughout the morning, said the method of entry into the building was not immediately determined.

David Niebert, an agent with the Bureau of Criminal Investigation at London, arrived here this morning to help with the probe.

According to officers, nothing else was reported taken other than the money from the safe.

Dems To Cite Dead Leaders

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The Democratic party honors the memory tonight of three leaders who died since its last national convention: Sam Rayburn, Eleanor Roosevelt, and John F. Kennedy.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, brother of the late president, will introduce a film that depicts the achievements of Kennedy from his inaugural until his assassination last Nov. 22.

U.N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson will pay tribute to Mrs. Roosevelt, the widow of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. She died on Nov. 7, 1962.

James A. Farley, former postmaster general and political chieftain during the Roosevelt era, will lead the memorial to Rayburn, the House speaker who died on Nov. 16, 1961.

Four Localities To Be OSU Grads

An Ohio State University graduating class of 1,217 will include four from the Circleville area when degrees are presented 9 a. m. Friday in St. John Arena.

Dr. A. Blair Knapp, president of Granville's Denison University, will deliver the commencement address.

Area graduates are Ronald L. Hoffman, who will receive a BS degree in agriculture; William D. McCoard, BS in social welfare; Judith A. Routhahn, BS in education; and Howard G. Weaver, master of arts.

Barry's View Of A-Arms Under Fire

CLEVELAND (AP)—Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus R. Vance said today that to label tactical nuclear weapons as "conventional"—a description used by Sen. Barry Goldwater—is "dangerously misleading and totally inappropriate."

Vance asserted that typical battlefield nuclear weapons now have destructive power several times greater than the strategic bombs which wiped out two Japanese cities in World War II.

His address was prepared for the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention, at which the Republican presidential nominee spoke Tuesday.

The particular target was Goldwater's proposal that a way should be developed to provide the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) "with its own stock of small, tactical nuclear battlefield weapons."

Goldwater told the veterans that "these small conventional nuclear weapons are no more powerful than the firepower you have faced on the battlefield."

Vance zeroed in on this portion of Goldwater's speech. He did not directly mention Goldwater or his speech, arriving at the issue by saying there were 291,000 American battle deaths in World War II and in case of all-out nuclear war the toll of "Americans alone would be equal to 300 World War II's."

Cincy Awaits 'Fantabulous' Beatle Crew

CINCINNATI (AP)—Four mop-topped lads from Liverpool headed into Cincinnati today and, to use a teen-age phrase, this metropolitan area faced a frantic and "fantabulous" time.

"They're 'gear,' man,"—"the mostest!"—sighed 14-year-old Karol Burgess, squealing in delight at the hardly-expected acquisition of two tickets to tonight's show by the Beatles before a capacity 13,000 in Cincinnati Gardens.

Some 100 policemen were ordered to duty around Cincinnati Gardens, some to report hours before the 8 p.m. opening; approximately 40 others were assigned to their uptown hotel and another 100 private guards were employed by a group of local disc jockeys who are sponsoring the show.

Privately, the bluecoats had words more earthy adult than "fantabulous" for the prospect of being jostled by screaming youngsters throughout the afternoon and evening. Still, that feeling was lessened somewhat, most of all among badge-wearers who are the fathers of teenagers.

"My mother tells me girls of her day used to do much the same thing when Rudolph Valentino showed up anywhere," one young policeman mused. "I guess each generation has its idol. With me it was the three stooges! They wore mop wigs, you know!"

Princess Abandons Sinking Boat

OLBIA, Sardinia (AP)—Britain's Princess Margaret, her husband and the Aga Khan abandoned a yacht which hit a rock in heavy seas off Sardinia, and reached shore safely in rubber lifeboats, Italian authorities said today.

Mario Castellucci, chief administrative officer for this vacation area, said the accident happened Wednesday while the three, and the Aga Khan's French lawyer, Andre Ardou, of Paris, were on an outing aboard the Aga Khan's pleasure boat, the Amaloun.

Castellucci said the small yacht, which has a five-man crew, hit a rock about 75 yards off shore from Capriccioli, a northern Sardinian beach area under development by the Aga Khan.

"Because the boat began taking water and listing, those aboard decided to go ashore in rubber lifeboats. No one jumped or fell in the water, and there was no excitement," Castellucci said.

The princess and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, have been the Aga Khan's guests at his hotel at Cola di Volpe, during a three-week holiday.

Board Approves Pickaway Plat

Final approval of a plat calling for a subdivision in Pickaway Twp. was granted this week by the Board of County Commissioners.

The plat, submitted by Kester and Duhrne McCain, Route 4, is listed as approved by the Commission, provides that use or improvement of the land involved will be in conformity with all valid and existing zoning and other regulations of Pickaway County.

The subdivision is located along the Circleville - Tallton Road and east of Route 56.

Kiwanians To Hear Congressman Bolton

Congressman Oliver P. Bolton, GOP candidate for congress at large, is scheduled to speak at the regular dinner meeting of Circleville Kiwanis Club at 6:30 p. m. Monday in the Mecca Dining Room.

A Bolton representative noted that Congress reconvenes on Monday and should important legislation be scheduled for a vote, Bolton's plans for speaking here may be changed.

Johnson Taps

Connecticut senator said he had told the president to "include me out" of consideration for the vice presidential nomination.

Speculation among high party officials was that the Connecticut senator had been offered appointment as Attorney General when Robert F. Kennedy steps out of that office to make the race for the Senate in New York. This might bring National Chairman John M. Bailey into the picture as a possible successor if Dodd accepted the Cabinet post.

Johnson hadn't been scheduled to visit the convention until today. But as soon as his nomination was acclaimed with a tumultuous, banner waving, flag-flying demonstration, he strode to the platform.

Flanked by his wife and two daughters, he said he was happy about the honor done him. He said he would be back to tell the delegates, who bulged the hall to overflowing, about his plans for "an overwhelming victory for our party and our nation" in the November ballot.

He complimented the delegates on a platform "on which I am proud to stand" and on their settlement of delegate seating squabbles in the Mississippi and Alabama delegations.

Then the President laid low another precedent by launching into a stem-winding nominating speech for Humphrey. He said he had spent "long and prayerful hours" and had consulted with party leaders from every section of the country before deciding on "the man best qualified to assume the office of the President of the United States should that day come."

Then, after holding back the name for tantalizing seconds, he came out with the name: "Senator Hubert Humphrey."

Something akin to genuine pandemonium broke out as the convention learned officially for the first time the answer to the big question which had been in every delegate's mind for days.

Humphrey, accompanied by his family, marched up to the podium and Johnson, stepping aside, let his running mate have his time in the spotlights.

After the convention had adjourned for the night Johnson flew back to Washington, obviously cherishing the belief that he had the strongest possible ticket and an nearly unified party behind him.

Politically the choice of Humphrey offered the party liberals a glittering prize to offset all of the efforts the President had made to keep Southern conservatives in camp and to prevent a walkout by Southern dissidents.

Johnson's name was formally placed in nomination by Govs. Connally and Edmund G. Brown of California.

Lady Bird Is Enthused About Coming Campaign

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Another campaign is nothing new for Lady Bird Johnson. She's thrived on them for 27 years.

In the nine months she's served as the nation's 32nd First Lady, Mrs. Johnson traveled about 35,000 miles across America, helping to promote the administration of her husband, President Johnson.

She barely paused from official and political travel to get to the convention.

Some idea of the pace she maintains was shown in Mrs. Johnson's recent four-day Western tour in which she kept up an 18-hour-a-day schedule.

At 51, black-haired, brown-eyed Mrs. Johnson continues to have unusual energy and enthusiasm for the tasks of greeting constituents and "people-seeing," as she calls her trips. And, she has a dogged devotion to duty.

One reason for her trips, Mrs. Johnson explains, is that "statistics only come alive when you see the people behind them."

As a political wife, she probably holds the title "best-qualified" from experience alone.

She got a $10,000 advance on her inheritance from her father to back Johnson's first congressional campaign in 1937 — and she's been busy backing him ever since.

Catapulted into the White House upon the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, she took on the role of First Lady with the smoothness and ease of long training in Washington ways.

It is generally agreed that not since Eleanor Roosevelt, has a First Lady taken on so much or involved herself so keenly in the husband's projects. Mrs. Johnson also serves as an extra set of eyes and ear to keep the man in the White House informed.

Mrs. Johnson has overcome her own shyness and with some professional help has been perfecting a smooth delivery of speeches, which lately have been taking on a more political tinge.

Her greatest asset is the feeling of genuine warmth and interest that she displays on her trips and visits.

Except that she's busier, being in the White House hasn't changed Mrs. Johnson. She still goes out to the hairdresser instead of having him come in. She manages to shop once in a while without being recognized. And she doesn't mind a bit being seen in the same dress more than once. In fact, she makes a point to say she thinks clothes should serve the person, not the other way around.

She's still in the size 10 she's been for years, weighs about 114 pounds, and keeps that way by dieting when needed, often on prunes and hardboiled eggs.

Mostly Mrs. Johnson prefers not to wear hats, but she conforms at all major functions.

Only last week, she took a "stolen moment," with 20-year-old daughter, Lynda, and the two strolled to the nearby Tidal Basin south of the White House and went out in a paddle boat to relax alone.

Because she was born in Texas like her husband, Mrs. Johnson is constantly greeted with the strains of "The Yellow Rose of Texas" and bouquets of yellow roses are presented to her at almost every stop. She usually pauses before she leaves to write a note and send the flowers she can't use on to a local hospital or someone needy.

When she signs autographs in crowds, recipients often are surprised to see what she's written. Initials as well as the President's.

Actually, Mrs. Johnson was named Claudia Alta Taylor when she was born Dec. 12, 1912, in the East Texas town of Karnack, where her father, Thomas Jefferson Taylor, operated a general store and owned cotton lands.

But, nobody ever calls her that. "It's 'Lady Bird,' the name a nursemaid settled on her at the age of two, declaring 'Why, she's as purty as a lady bird.'" Mrs. Johnson tried hard to lose the nickname, but it stuck and she has accepted it, too.

She carries into her everyday speech the poetic and colorful phrases that her close associates say comes from a lonely childhood spent reading her mother's library filled with classics.

Her mother, Minnie Pattillo Taylor, from a wealthy Alabama family, died when Lady Bird was 5 years old and she was brought up by a maiden aunt, Effie Pattillo, who saw her through Marshall High School, where she was graduated at 15, and on to St. Mary's School for Girls in Dallas.

Lady Bird majored in history at the University of Texas in Austin, where she earned a bachelor of arts degree in 1933 and went on for a degree in journalism the following year.

Tall Texan Lyndon Johnson came into Lady Bird's life before she could start the careers she contemplated as a qualified grade teacher, also trained in shorthand, typing and business courses that would have come in handy in secretarial work.

They were introduced by a friend. Lyndon proposed the next day and they were married two months later, Nov. 17, 1934, at old St. Mark's Episcopal church in San Antonio, Tex. She was 21, he 26.

Mrs. Johnson inherited money and lands from her Alabama relatives and with some of the money she decided in 1942 to invest in a small, debt-ridden radio station, KTBC, in Austin. In the years since, she has built it into a multimillion-dollar enterprise.

When the President released a financial statement for his family just before the Democratic convention, it revealed that through a 10-year period, from 1954 to 1964, she was paid more for her services to Texas Broadcasting Corp., than her husband received in the same period as senator, vice president and President. She got $570,856.

Views on Television — Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hours before the Democrats gathered to hear the nominating speeches for Lyndon Baines Johnson Wednesday, it seemed to those of us watching on television that somebody had pulled the huge cork that was bottling up the convention.

After two dreary, worried days dampened by the civil rights problems of two states, it suddenly seemed that everybody was, finally, going to be allowed some fun.

The cork-puller was the President of the United States himself who by a mid-afternoon telephone call to Hubert H. Humphrey, perhaps deliberately changed the entire focus of the television networks' concentration on the convention.

Prepared as we were for President Johnson's selection of the Minnesota senator as his running mate, convention-watching suddenly became a lively experience as the networks switched furiously back and forth between Atlantic City and Washington. And sometimes — as when the President at the Atlantic City airport praised Humphrey's qualifications—the living room audience had the official word before the delegates in the auditorium.

The coverage, by all three networks, of the fast-breaking news events of the day was superb. It started shortly after 3 p.m. outside the Humphrey hotel suite immediately after President Johnson had invited him to come to Washington. ABC, it seemed, was a minute or so ahead on the break, but the NBC camera caught Humphrey in telling close-up as he said, in a voice tense with excitement: "I don't know — I've just been asked to come and I'm coming — let's cut out of here!"

It was some time later that the President admitted he had made his choice, but we viewers figured the senator was a shoo-in when all the network anchor teams suddenly started calling him "Hubert Horatio Humphrey."

There was infinitely more to watch, including the reception of the first lady and her attractive daughters between rain showers.

Choice of the best coverage team among the three networks is rather like choosing among mayonnaise, French or thousand island dressing for a salad: it is simply a matter of personal taste. They all strove mightily and all did very well in the complicated business of covering all bases.

Findlayite To Judge Aerobic Contests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michael Murphy of Findlay, Ohio, has been selected by the Aero Club of Spain to be an international judge at the World Aerobic Championships at Bilbao, Spain, next week.

Murphy is a veteran judge and former top aerobic pilot. Three U.S. pilots will compete in the world championships, only the second time the United States has had a full team entry in the competition.

Lady Bird Is Enthused About Coming Campaign

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Another campaign is nothing new for Lady Bird Johnson. She's thrived on them for 27 years.

In the nine months she's served as the nation's 32nd First Lady, Mrs. Johnson traveled about 35,000 miles across America, helping to promote the administration of her husband, President Johnson.

She barely paused from official and political travel to get to the convention.

Some idea of the pace she maintains was shown in Mrs. Johnson's recent four-day Western tour in which she kept up an 18-hour-a-day schedule.

At 51, black-haired, brown-eyed Mrs. Johnson continues to have unusual energy and enthusiasm for the tasks of greeting constituents and "people-seeing," as she calls her trips. And, she has a dogged devotion to duty.

One reason for her trips, Mrs. Johnson explains, is that "statistics only come alive when you see the people behind them."

As a political wife, she probably holds the title "best-qualified" from experience alone.

She got a $10,000 advance on her inheritance from her father to back Johnson's first congressional campaign in 1937 — and she's been busy backing him ever since.

Catapulted into the White House upon the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, she took on the role of First Lady with the smoothness and ease of long training in Washington ways.

It is generally agreed that not since Eleanor Roosevelt, has a First Lady taken on so much or involved herself so keenly in the husband's projects. Mrs. Johnson also serves as an extra set of eyes and ear to keep the man in the White House informed.

Mrs. Johnson has overcome her own shyness and with some professional help has been perfecting a smooth delivery of speeches, which lately have been taking on a more political tinge.

Her greatest asset is the feeling of genuine warmth and interest that she displays on her trips and visits.

Except that she's busier, being in the White House hasn't changed Mrs. Johnson. She still goes out to the hairdresser instead of having him come in. She manages to shop once in a while without being recognized. And she doesn't mind a bit being seen in the same dress more than once. In fact, she makes a point to say she thinks clothes should serve the person, not the other way around.

She's still in the size 10 she's been for years, weighs about 114 pounds, and keeps that way by dieting when needed, often on prunes and hardboiled eggs.

Mostly Mrs. Johnson prefers not to wear hats, but she conforms at all major functions.

Only last week, she took a "stolen moment," with 20-year-old daughter, Lynda, and the two strolled to the nearby Tidal Basin south of the White House and went out in a paddle boat to relax alone.

Because she was born in Texas like her husband, Mrs. Johnson is constantly greeted with the strains of "The Yellow Rose of Texas" and bouquets of yellow roses are presented to her at almost every stop. She usually pauses before she leaves to write a note and send the flowers she can't use on to a local hospital or someone needy.

When she signs autographs in crowds, recipients often are surprised to see what she's written. Initials as well as the President's.

Actually, Mrs. Johnson was named Claudia Alta Taylor when she was born Dec. 12, 1912, in the East Texas town of Karnack, where her father, Thomas Jefferson Taylor, operated a general store and owned cotton lands.

But, nobody ever calls her that. "It's 'Lady Bird,'" the name a nursemaid settled on her at the age of two, declaring "Why, she's as purty as a lady bird." Mrs. Johnson tried hard to lose the nickname, but it stuck and she has accepted it, too.

She carries into her everyday speech the poetic and colorful phrases that her close associates say comes from a lonely childhood spent reading her mother's library filled with classics.

Her mother, Minnie Pattillo Taylor, from a wealthy Alabama family, died when Lady Bird was 5 years old and she was brought up by a maiden aunt, Effie Pattillo, who saw her through Marshall High School, where she was graduated at 15, and on to St. Mary's School for Girls in Dallas.

Lady Bird majored in history at the University of Texas in Austin, where she earned a bachelor of arts degree in 1933 and went on for a degree in journalism the following year.

Tall Texan Lyndon Johnson came into Lady Bird's life before she could start the careers she contemplated as a qualified grade teacher, also trained in shorthand, typing and business courses that would have come in handy in secretary work.

They were introduced by a friend. Lyndon proposed the next day and they were married two months later, Nov. 17, 1934, at old St. Mark's Episcopal church in San Antonio, Tex. She was 21, he 26.

Mrs. Johnson inherited money and lands from her Alabama relatives and with some of the money she decided in 1942 to invest in a small, debt-ridden radio station, KTBC, in Austin. In the years since, she has built it into a multimillion-dollar enterprise.

When the President released a financial statement for his family just before the Democratic convention, it revealed that through a 10-year period, from 1954 to 1964, she was paid more for her services to Texas Broadcasting Corp., than her husband received in the same period as senator, vice president and President. She got $570,856.

Ohio Electric Union Authorizes Strike

DETROIT (AP) — Strike authorization has been approved by 25,000 General Motors workers — including those at GM plants in Dayton and Warren, Ohio — represented by the International Union of Electrical Workers. The union's contract with GM runs out at midnight Monday, but a union official said Wednesday's strike vote does not necessarily mean there will be a strike.

The GM plants in Ohio which employ workers represented by the IUE are the Frigidaire and Delco Products division at Dayton and the Packard Electric Division at Warren.

Views on Television — Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hours before the Democrats gathered to hear the nominating speeches for Lyndon Baines Johnson Wednesday, it seemed to those of us watching on television that somebody had pulled the huge cork that was bottling up the convention.

After two dreary, worried days dampened by the civil rights problems of two states, it suddenly seemed that everybody was, finally, going to be allowed some fun.

The cork-puller was the President of the United States himself who by a mid-afternoon telephone call to Hubert H. Humphrey, perhaps deliberately changed the entire focus of the television networks' concentration on the convention.

Prepared as we were for President Johnson's selection of the Minnesota senator as his running mate, convention-watching suddenly became a lively experience as the networks switched furiously back and forth between Atlantic City and Washington. And sometimes — as when the President at the Atlantic City airport praised Humphrey's qualifications — the living room audience had the official word before the delegates in the auditorium.

The coverage, by all three networks, of the fast-breaking news events of the day was superb. It started shortly after 3 p.m. outside the Humphrey hotel suite immediately after President Johnson had invited him to come to Washington. ABC, it seemed, was a minute or so ahead on the break, but the NBC camera caught Humphrey in telling close-up as he said, in a voice tense with excitement: "I don't know — I've just been asked to come and I'm coming — let's cut out of here!"

It was some time later that the President admitted he had made his choice, but we viewers figured the senator was a shoo-in when all the network anchor teams suddenly started calling him "Hubert Horatio Humphrey."

There was infinitely more to watch, including the reception of the first lady and her attractive daughters between rain showers.

Choice of the best coverage team among the three networks is rather like choosing among mayonnaise, French or thousand island dressing for a salad: it is simply a matter of personal taste. They all strove mightily and all did very well in the complicated business of covering all bases.

Findlayite To Judge Aerobic Contests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michael Murphy of Findlay, Ohio, has been selected by the Aero Club of Spain to be an international judge at the World Aerobic Championships at Bilbao, Spain, next week.

Murphy is a veteran judge and former top aerobic pilot. Three U.S. pilots will compete in the world championships, only the second time the United States has had a full team entry in the competition.

Poetry Amidst Dark War

NEW YORK (AP)—War is evil. War is ugly. War is wrong. Most of all, however, war is boring and wasteful.

But now and then the long black hours of boredom in war are broken by a bright moment of pure poetry.

Such a moment came 20 years ago this week when French and American troops "liberated" Paris. Actually, Paris itself was not so much liberated as they themselves were freed. To the soldiers, worn from the green hell of Normandy hedgerows, the wide boulevards of "The City of Light" seemed like paths through paradise.

Time gives most of us more midnights than mornings. But to anyone who was in Paris on Aug. 25, 1944, that date remains indelibly engraved in his mind as one of the milestones of his life.

Paris at any time is a delight to the eye of any boy from Elmsville, U.S.A., but on liberation day it was also an utter ecstasy of the spirit.

Everybody was laughing, everybody was young. All the girls were pretty and kissable, and there were no bottoms to the wine bottles.

There was no difference between day and night, and it seemed like the celebrating would go on forever.

Of course, it couldn't—and it didn't. That blinding morning of happiness finally wore out. The people of Paris went back to work, you had to start paying for the wine, and war again came, a long, slow, boring, plodding trudge toward victory.

The other evening a group of graying ex-soldiers and paunchy former war correspondents met at the Overseas Press Club in New York and rekindled briefly the lost rapture of liberation day in Paris.

"Remember when—" said one fellow.

"Yes, and remember when" said another fellow, who couldn't quite remember the first fellow's name.

In a way it was sad, as most reunions are. It is hard to warm the heart over the ashes of a 20-year-old bonfire. And missing were such familiar figures as Ernie Pyle, "Red" Knickerbocker, Ernest Hemingway, A. J. Liebling, Clark Lee and Bob Capa, all gone down time's drain.

Looking back across the last two decades, I can think of no one who knew better the dangers of war and perils of peace than Ernie Pyle. Numbered himself by the horrors of combat, he wrote shortly before the liberation of Paris:

"All of us together will have to learn how to reassemble our broken world into a pattern so firm and so fair that another great war cannot soon be possible."

"Submersion in war does not necessarily qualify a man to be the master of the peace. All we can do is fumble and try once more—try out of the memory of our anguish—and be as tolerant with each other as we can."

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

THE POLICE OFFICER who headed the night shift in a station house on the outskirts of Paris answered in a phone, and heard an agitated citizen quaver, "There's a dual to the death scheduled for six a.m. in the park tomorrow and it's up to you police to stop a stop to it." "We know, we know," the officer answered him. "Your adversary has already called us."

Poor little John C. Henpeck complained to his doctor, "I keep dreaming that I'm cast away on a tiny island all alone with twelve gorgeous women." "What's so terrible about that?" chuckled the doctor. "What's terrible?" echoed John C. Henpeck. "Have you ever tried cooking for twelve women?"

"Why don't you buy me a mink coat?" pouted a luscious young thing at a hockey game. "I'm very, very cold." "If you know the answer," growled the hockey enthusiast, "why do you ask the question?"

Lesson To Be Learned

By John Chamberlain

ATLANTIC CITY — One lesson to be learned from the lobes of Atlantic City is that the Democratic Party is as seamed and fissured with antagonistic elements as the Republican Party. But nobody, save Governor Wallace and Bull Connor of Alabama and the two sets of delegates from Mississippi, seems to want to do anything about it.

For example, the two senators from Georgia, Dick Russell and Herman Talmadge, appear to have made themselves scarce. They might, conceivably, have some mild objections to certain planks in the platform, something of a voltage to be compared to Governor Romney's attempted "improvement" on the Republican civil rights planks (though in a different direction). But the Georgia senators aren't muddying any waters; they are being graceful about things.

Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia doesn't seem to be here, either. His friends say this is nothing unusual. So nothing is made of his differences with the high command of the party.

On foreign policy, the "covenant of unity" (that's the official description of the platform) makes a lot of promises that will be assailed from both extremes of the Democratic Party the very next time an issue reaches the floor of the U. S. Senate. "We pledge unflinching devotion to our commitments to freedom from Berlin to South Viet Nam," says the platform.

But Wayne Morse (Democrat from Oregon), Ernest Gruening (Democrat from Alaska), and even Montana's Mike Mansfield, who was on many lists as a possible vice presidential nominee have advocated a cut and run policy in Southeast Asia. On the other hand, Senator Tom Dodd of Connecticut is known to consider the broad statements in the Democratic platform on peace and foreign policy to be weak from the anti-communist point of view. Dodd might agree with what the platform says about the "international communists' loss of unity." However, when the platform announced that communism had lost its "momentum," Dodd raised a skeptical eyebrow. He reads the news from South Viet Nam and the Congo differently.

But, after all, what difference do the differences make? Unlike the Republicans, the Democrats are always forgiven by the fashionable "liberal" opinion-makers who seem to carry the day in the U. S. With the liberals, the Democratic Party has the same sort of dispensation that the Mexican Party of Revolutionary Institutions receives from the Mexican voters. The Mexican party is all things to all Mexicans. To the Indian in his agricultural commune, it is still the party that, Lenin-fashion, "expropriated the expropriators" and made land available to everybody. But the "bourgeois" elements that have been gathering strength in Mexico have discovered they have very little to fear from any Party of Revolutionary Institutions president. The Mexican president, today, is the president of all the people, and his party is the party of all the people. Lyndon Johnson aspires to preside over a similar Mexicanization of his own party (left, right, and center segments) and nation.

Not everybody in the U. S. is willing to let Johnson have his way. Johnson can argue that the most recent poll records (which he flashes on visitors very much as he used to flash his bill of cardiac good health) show that he's got it made in November. For example, the polls from Milwaukee do not indicate any statistical drift of backslashing Poles from the Democratic party ranks. But Milwaukee people here at Atlantic City tell you not to trust the polls on the Poles. And Southerners who would like to believe Johnson when he tells the Southern governors that he will get all the states below the Mason-Dixon line save Virginia, Florida, Mississippi, and Alabama just don't go with such optimism.

However, to carry out the Mexicanization analogy, the business classes are finding they can live with the poor of Appalachia under the same Democratic Party tent. Edwin L. Weisel Sr., displacing Carmine DeSapio as Democratic National Committeeman in New York State, will carry many businessmen friends into the LBJ fold. Extremes are meeting in the Democratic Party — and this is an extremism that Barry Goldwater cannot welcome.

Another fact of which the consumer is aware is that the price of meat is certainly high enough at the present without any further hike. Since such action on the part of the NFO may bring some monetary gains to the farmer, while going deeper into the pockets of the consumer, it seems to me that said consumer, the dupe in this hassle, has but one recourse. That is to cut down his consumption of meat.

Such a move is bound to offset the manipulations of the NFO, whose members are surely aware that in the final accounting Mr. John Q. Public will be the goat.

The observance of a meatless day once a week on the part of we consumers can accomplish wonders at this time.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

by LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

When penicillin, discovered by Sir Alexander Fleming, was first used effectively almost 25 years ago, it introduced a new era of hope.

But at that time even the most enthusiastic experimenters never dreamed that this single new discovery would revolutionize the health status of mankind.

Now scientific hopes are centered on another contribution of Sir Alexander Fleming. In 1922, he discovered in the human body a powerful chemical substance, which he named Lysozyme. He noted that this substance had very strong germ-killing properties.

Since it was first found, Lysozyme has been isolated and recognized in almost all the tissues and secretions of the human body.

It is now considered to be a vital element in the body's natural defense mechanism.

Scientists are so enthusiastic about the potential uses of Lysozyme that an international meeting was held recently in Milan, Italy, to review its great possibilities and outline a program for further research.

Still in the experimental stage Lysozyme has so far been used effectively against certain types of cancer, for relieving severe pain, in the treatment of viral disease, and in clearing up difficult skin conditions.

Results have been sufficiently successful, safe and promising to encourage further use.

Intensive studies on Lysozyme are being conducted at research centers all over the world.

So vast and promising are the potentials of Lysozyme that even skeptics must concede the possibility of another revolutionary era in medicine. Perhaps Lysozyme will join penicillin in making even greater the debt that mankind owes to Sir Alexander Fleming.

Is it good for the body to take penicillin for all infections?

The overuse and abuse of penicillin and antibiotics have occupied the attention of doctors everywhere.

The decision to use an antibiotic is one that takes mature medical judgment. Sometimes patients unwittingly exert pressure on their doctors for a "quick recovery" shot. Patients will do well to remember that it is far more time-consuming for a doctor to tell you why you should not have an antibiotic than it is to give it. Rely on his judgment. If he feels your condition needs an antibiotic, it will be prescribed without your asking.

Is penicillin the same as the "mycins"?

Technically they are markedly different in composition. Yet they both overlap in their effectiveness in the treatment of certain types of bacterial infections.

Is it safe to use penicillin left over from a bout of illness that occurred eight months ago?

New illnesses deserve their own drugs. A simple way to avoid confusion about the potency and safety of leftovers is to get rid of the drugs when the patient has recovered from that illness. The temptation of self-medication is thereby controlled.

Poetry Amidst Dark War

NEW YORK (AP)—War is evil. War is ugly. War is wrong. Most of all, however, war is boring and wasteful.

But now and then the long black hours of boredom in war are broken by a bright moment of pure poetry.

Such a moment came 20 years ago this week when French and American troops "liberated" Paris. Actually, Paris itself was not so much liberated as they themselves were freed. To the soldiers, worn from the green hell of Normandy hedgerows, the wide boulevards of "the City of Light" seemed like paths through paradise.

Time gives most of us more nightmares than mornings. But to anyone who was in Paris on Aug. 25, 1944, that date remains indelibly engraved in his mind as one of the milestones of his life.

Paris at any time is a delight to the eye of any boy from Elmsville, U.S.A., but on liberation day it was also an utter ecstasy of the spirit. Everybody was laughing, everybody was young. All the girls were pretty and kissable, and there were no bottoms to the wine bottles.

There was no difference between day and night, and it seemed like the celebrating would go on forever.

Of course, it couldn't—and it didn't. That blinding morning of happiness finally wore out. The people of Paris went back to work, you had to start paying for the wine, and war again became a long, slow, boring, plodding trudge toward victory.

The other evening a group of graying ex-soldiers and paunchy former war correspondents met at the Overseas Press Club in New York and rekindled briefly the lost rapture of liberation day in Paris.

"Remember when—" said one fellow.

"Yes, and remember when" said another fellow, who couldn't quite remember the first fellow's name.

In a way it was sad, as most reunions are. It is hard to warm the heart over the ashes of a 20-year-old bonfire. And missing were such familiar figures as Ernie Pyle, "Red" Knickerbocker, Ernest Hemingway, A. J. Liebling, Clark Lee and Bob Capa, all gone down time's drain.

Looking back across the last two decades, I can think of no one who knew better the dangers of war and perils of peace than Ernie Pyle. Numbed himself by the horrors of combat, he wrote shortly before the liberation of Paris:

"All of us together will have to learn how to reassemble our broken world into a pattern so firm and so fair that another great war cannot soon be possible."

"Submersion in war does not necessarily qualify a man to be the master of the peace. All we can do is fumble and try once more—try out of the memory of our anguish—and be as tolerant with each other as we can."

LAFF-A-DAY

"You're in for a double feature. We took separate vacations this summer!"

Lesson To Be Learned

By John Chamberlain

ATLANTIC CITY — One lesson to be learned from the lobbies of Atlantic City is that the Democratic Party is as seamed and fissured with antagonistic elements as the Republican Party. But nobody, save Governor Wallace and Bull Connor of Alabama and the two sets of delegates from Mississippi, seems to want to do anything about it.

For example, the two senators from Georgia, Dick Russell and Herman Talmadge, appear to have made themselves scarce. They might, conceivably, have some mild objections to certain planks in the platform, something of a voltage to be compared to Governor Romney's attempted "improvement" on the Republican civil rights plank (though in a different direction). But the Georgia senators aren't muddying any waters; they are being graceful about things.

Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia doesn't seem to be here, either. His friends say this is nothing unusual. So nothing is made of his differences with the high command of the party.

On foreign policy, the "covenant of unity" (that's the official description of the platform) makes a lot of promises that will be assailed from both extremes of the Democratic Party the very next time an issue reaches the floor of the U. S. Senate. "We pledge unflinching devotion to our commitments to freedom from Berlin to South Viet Nam," says the platform.

But Wayne Morse (Democrat from Oregon), Ernest Gruening (Democrat from Alaska), and even Montana's Mike Mansfield, who was on many lists as a possible vice presidential nominee have advocated a cut and run policy in Southeast Asia. On the other hand, Senator Tom Dodd of Connecticut is known to consider the broad statements in the Democratic platform on peace and foreign policy to be weak from the anti-communist point of view. Dodd might agree with what the platform says about the "international communists' loss of unity." However, when the platform announced that communism had lost its "momentum," Dodd raised a skeptical eyebrow. He reads the news from South Viet Nam and the Congo differently.

But, after all, what difference do the differences make? Unlike the Republicans, the Democrats are always forgiven by the fashionable "liberal" opinion-makers who seem to carry the day in the U. S. With the liberals, the Democratic Party has the same sort of dispensation that the Mexican Party of Revolutionary Institutions receives from the Mexican voters. The Mexican party is all things to all Mexicans. To the Indian in his agricultural commune, it is still the party that, Lenin-fashion, "expropriated the expropriators" and made land available to everybody. But the "bourgeois" elements that have been gathering strength in Mexico have discovered they have very little to fear from any Party of Revolutionary Institutions president. The Mexican president, today, is the president of all the people, and his party is the party of all the people. Lyndon Johnson aspires to preside over a similar Mexicanization of his own party (left, right, and center segments) and nation.

Not everybody in the U. S. is willing to let Johnson have his way. Johnson can argue that the most recent poll records (which he flashes on visitors very much as he used to flash his bill of cardiac good health) show that he's got it made in November. For example, the polls from Milwaukee do not indicate any statistical drift of backslashing Poles from the Democratic party ranks. But Milwaukee people here at Atlantic City tell you not to trust the polls on the Poles. And Southerners who would like to believe Johnson when he tells the Southern governors that he will get all the states below the Mason-Dixon line save Virginia, Florida, Mississippi, and Alabama just don't go with such optimism.

However, to carry out the Mexicanization analogy, the business classes are finding they can live with the poor of Appalachia under the same Democratic Party tent, Edwin L. Weisel Sr., displacing Carmine DeSapio as Democratic National Committeeman in New York State, will carry many businessmen friends into the LBJ fold. Extremes are meeting in the Democratic Party—and this is an extremism that Barry Goldwater cannot welcome.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO
Judge William Ammer was elected president of the Pickaway County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

Circleville Blue Star Mothers Chapter, No. 7, held its annual picnic at the Columbus Zoo for 30 patients from the Chillicothe VA Hospital.

Jack Tarbill of near Atlanta walked off with first place in the Ohio State Fair's Tractor Operating contest.

TEN YEARS AGO
Miss Lorain Gifford was crowned princess and Charles Boldoser was named as prince at a "Mystery Ride" sponsored by Pickaway County Grange Youth.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wiloughby entertained with a dinner party at their home, 144 E. Water St.

Miss Linda Emerine, Route 3, entertained a group of her friends to a slumber party.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
One of the largest crowds in the history of the Mount of Praise Campmeeting of the Churches of Christ in Christian Union, E. Ohio St., attended the closing session.

A crowd estimated at 1,000 persons visited Gold Cliff Park to watch Dorsey Arledge, 20, of Kinnikinnick, make his first parachute jump.

Mrs. R. R. Bales, E. Main St., honored Mrs. James Check of Oklahoma City, Okla., with a bridge party.

Letter To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE — We welcome letters to the editor. They must be signed by the writer with a complete return address. However the name and address will not be used in the published letter upon request of the writer. Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writers and not necessarily those of The Herald.

Dear Sir:

It is not the intent of this letter to question the right of the National Farmers Organization to induce farmers to withhold livestock from the market.

Also, I would be the last to question the validity for doing so, not knowing the farmer's problems well enough to argue one way or another. But I do know the action of the NFO to induce farmers to withhold their livestock from the market in order to raise the producer's prices by creating a meat shortage will have this sure and obvious result: The price to the consumer will rise.

This is a fact brought home to the consumer time upon time whenever such action is instigated.

Another fact of which the consumer is aware is that the price of meat is certainly high enough at the present without any further hike.

Since such action on the part of the NFO may bring some monetary gains to the farmer, while going deeper into the pockets of the consumer, it seems to me that said consumer, the dupe in this hassle, has but one recourse. That is to cut down his consumption of meat.

Such a move is bound to offset the manipulations of the NFO, whose members are surely aware that in the final accounting Mr. John Q. Public will be the goat.

The observance of a meatless day once a week on the part of we consumers can accomplish wonders at this time.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

THE POLICE OFFICER who headed the night shift in a station house on the outskirts of Paris answered the phone, and heard an agitated citizen quaver, "There's a dupe to the death scheduled for six a.m. in the park tomorrow and it's up to you police to put a stop to it." "We know, we know," the officer answered him. "Your adversary has already called us."

Poor little John C. Henpeck complained to his doctor, "I keep dreaming that I'm cast away on a tiny island all alone with twelve gorgeous women." "What's so terrible about that?" chuckled the doctor. "What's terrible?" echoed John C. Henpeck. "Have you ever tried cooking for twelve women?"

"Why don't you buy me a mink coat?" pouted a luscious young thing at a hockey game. "I'm very, very cold." "If you know the answer," growled the hockey enthusiast, "why do you ask the question?"

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

by LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

When penicillin, discovered by Sir Alexander Fleming, was first used effectively almost 25 years ago, it introduced a new era of hope.

But at that time even the most enthusiastic experimenters never dreamed that this single new discovery would revolutionize the health status of mankind.

Now scientific hopes are centered on another contribution of Sir Alexander Fleming. In 1922, he discovered in the human body a powerful chemical substance, which he named Lysozyme. He noted that this substance had very strong germ-killing properties.

Since it was first found, Lysozyme has been isolated and recognized in almost all the tissues and secretions of the human body.

It is now considered to be a vital element in the body's natural defense mechanism.

Scientists are so enthusiastic about the potential uses of Lysozyme that an international meeting was held recently in Milan, Italy, to review its great possibilities and outline a program for further research.

Still in the experimental stage Lysozyme has so far been used effectively against certain types of cancer, for relieving severe pain, in the treatment of viral disease, and in clearing up difficult skin conditions.

Results have been sufficiently successful, safe and promising to encourage further use.

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Rising red meat prices and lower poultry prices will send many shoppers to chicken and turkey displays at the nation's groceries this weekend.

One national chain offers roasting chickens at 39 cents a pound in its New York area stores. Broiler-fryers are also widely featured.

Turkeys, with production higher and bigger birds especially attractive in price, are another popular feature.

Meat prices, especially choice beef, have risen in recent weeks. One chain's quotation for rib roasts climbing from 69 cents at the beginning of the month of 85 cents this weekend.

On the West Coast, wholesale prices of beef ribs are up about

3 cents from a week ago. Mid-western retail markets also are tagging many beef cuts higher.

This weekend's retail prices may be reflecting, in addition to a recent upward trend, the effects of a program by the National Farmers Organization to withholding cattle and hogs from market in a move designed to boost prices.

Chief beef features this weekend include chuck and rump roasts, boneless pot roasts, ground beef and stew meat.

One national chain offers top or bottom round, sirloin, rib and rump roasts all at 89 cents a pound in the Northeast.

Among pork attractions, leaders include chops, spareribs, loin roasts, sausage, butts and hams.

Dry weather in many areas has had some effect on fresh vegetables but supplies are nonetheless ample. Included on the good buy list are cabbage, carrots, celery, corn, eggplant, lettuce, onions, peppers, potatoes, squash, sweet potatoes and tomatoes.

Regional vegetable attractions include lima beans, beets, broccoli, radishes, eggplant, artichokes, peas and cauliflower.

Fruit counter features include apples, bananas, cantaloupes, grapes, honeydew melons, nectarines, peaches, plums and limes.

Old Mosques Crumbling in Soviet Area

TASHKENT, U.S.S.R. (AP)—The crumbling or converted mosque is a symbol in Uzbekistan, which with 10 million people is the most populous of the four Soviet republics of Central Asia.

Women were in the background in Moslem times. Now they represent a vital component of Uzbekistan's labor force.

The official Communist Party line is that most people have abandoned religion because of social and economic progress, plus expansion of public education.

"But a certain section of the population continues to profess Islam and freely performs all religious rites," says official literature.

The laws of the republic ostensibly provide for freedom of religion and freedom of anti-religious propaganda. But it's easy to see which has had the most powerful impact. You find decaying and locked-up mosques. Others have been converted into apartment houses, libraries, shopping centers, movies and public monuments.

The term "monument" is sometimes a euphemism. One mosque in Bukhara, described as a monument by the local guide, turns out to be a pool hall.

The authorities say 250 mosques operate in Soviet Central Asia. However, some are only makeshift or part-time ones.

Accused Slayer Is Labeled Sane

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—Lima State Hospital authorities notified Common Pleas Court here that Darrell Napoleon Pierce, 51, of near Gloucester, has been restored to reason and can stand trial for first-degree murder.

Pierce was sent to the hospital for observation in June 1963 after being indicted for the Feb. 9, 1963, slaying of his brother, Loren.

However, the hospital superintendent, Dr. J. O. Crist, said because of illness Pierce must remain under a doctor's care when returned here.

Fair Housing Law Vote in Akron Eyed

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Opponents of the city's fair housing ordinance have filed petitions with the Summit County Board of Elections asking for a Nov. 3 vote to determine if the law should remain in effect. If there are 8,150 valid signatures, City Council must put the issue on the ballot.

The ordinance bans discrimination in the sale or rental of property. Opponents of the law are asking for a vote on an amendment to the city charter which would require any ordinance dealing with fair housing to go to a vote of the people before it could become law.

If beavers did not wear down the incisors by gnawing wood, these fast-growing teeth would prop their mouths open.

Bunny Lives Up to Name; Adopts Rabbit

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A dog named Bunny has lived up to its name—it has adopted a wild rabbit.

"You never saw anything like it. That's her baby," said Mildred Casey, who owns Bunny, a 1½-year-old terrier, and more or less owns the rabbit, too.

Bunny was hunting rodents, a favorite pastime, about three weeks ago. The dog returned to the Casey house with a baby rabbit. The two have been inseparable since that time.

Bunny "sits down and washes that rabbit's face and ears. And just you try to touch that rabbit—your arm will come back a mangled stump. It's all right to look, but don't touch," says Mrs. Casey.

"To tell you the truth, I'm a little tired of feeding that big fat rabbit, but I don't dare touch it. Bunny won't let me."

Mrs. Casey believes that Bunny's maternal instinct for the puppy about three months ago.

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Rising red meat prices and lower poultry prices will send many shoppers to chicken and turkey displays at the nation's groceries this weekend.

One national chain offers roasting chickens at 39 cents a pound in its New York area stores. Broiler-fryers are also widely featured.

Turkeys, with production higher and bigger birds especially attractive in price, are another popular feature.

Meat prices, especially choice beef, have risen in recent weeks. One chain's quotation for rib roasts climbing from 69 cents at the beginning of the month of 85 cents this weekend.

On the West Coast, wholesale prices of beef ribs are up about

3 cents from a week ago. Mid-western retail markets also are tagging many beef cuts higher.

This weekend's retail prices may be reflecting, in addition to a recent upward trend, the effects of a program by the National Farmers Organization to withholding cattle and hogs from market in a move designed to boost prices.

Chief beef features this weekend include chuck and rump roasts, boneless pot roasts, ground beef and stew meat.

One national chain offers top or bottom round, sirloin, rib and rump roasts all at 89 cents a pound in the Northeast.

Among pork attractions, leaders include chops, spareribs, loin roasts, sausage, butts and hams.

Dry weather in many areas has had some effect on fresh vegetables but supplies are nonetheless ample. Included on the good buy list are cabbage, carrots, celery, corn, eggplant, lettuce, onions, peppers, potatoes, squash, sweet potatoes and tomatoes.

Regional vegetable attractions include lima beans, beets, broccoli, radishes, eggplant, artichokes, peas and cauliflower.

Fruit counter features include apples, bananas, cantaloupes, grapes, honeydew melons, nectarines, peaches, plums and limes.

FOOT CARE — After a day of sightseeing or extensive walking treat your feet to a tepid bath and then give them some elevated rest.

Simple Rules To Keep Feet Comfortable

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

Visiting pavilions at the New York World's Fair is like eating peanuts. You simply can't stop. You're just going to see one more pavilion, then the one next to it looks so intriguing you add it to the itinerary. Before you know it, you've done far more walking than you'd intended.

That's the way with the World's Fair and with sightseeing in general. It's awful on arches unless your feet are prepared for a marathon.

Dr. Joseph Lelyveld, chairman of the National Foot Health Council, says feet will take sightseeing in stride, if you ready them for it with these simple steps.

1. If reddened areas, corns, calluses or foot aches have developed in day-to-day walking, let a podiatrist treat your feet before you treat them to an exhausting round of seeing the sights.

2. Select shoes that are roomy enough for comfortable walking on hot days. Feet swell when weather is warm, so shop for "walking" shoes late in the afternoon after a day on feet and they'll be sure to fit comfortably.

3. Don't get on your high heels for pavilion-hopping at the Fair or you'll come hobbling into the home stretch.

Wear, instead, a shoe with a one-and-a-half inch heel, a closed back and a non-pointy toe. Don't go bare-legged. Protect feet with stockings or socks that are a half-inch longer than the longest toe to avoid cramping.

For comfort, socks made entirely of mercerized cotton yarn are best. The yarn is absorbent. In nylon hose, look for those that have feet made of mercerized cotton.

5. If you're sight-seeing at the Fair or elsewhere, take a break occasionally to give feet a rest.

At the Fair, there are countless restaurants and snack bars offering exotic foods. Frequent stops for light refreshment rest not only provide a welcome rest but will also give you an opportunity to sample exciting foods from around the world.

6. At the end of a day of pavilions, movies, rides, meals and wonders of all kinds, head home and treat feet to a tepid footbath softened with a handful of house hold borax.

Dry feet carefully, pat on talcum and give them 20 minutes of elevated rest.

This kind of tender, loving care is what they need, and what they deserve for carrying you through a wonderland of exciting sights sounds and scenes.

Two Members Of Family Are Honored

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Thomas of Tarlton entertained with a family cook-out honoring the birthday of their daughter, Sheri Lynn, and the fourth birthday of their nephew, Michael Glenn Fausnaugh.

Each small guest received party favors.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Dead End Street!

DEAR ABBY: Like the taxidermist whose problem was a fiancée who couldn't stand the sight of stuffed animals, I have a problem. I am a mortician, and my fiancée can't stand my work, although I never discuss it after hours.

After having gone to mortician college and investing much time and money in my profession, I've become somewhat successful, and don't want to give it up. My fiancée refuses to marry me unless I change my profession. I love her, but I am going to support her, unlike the taxidermist, I can't store my zoo in the attic.

IN DEAD EARNEST
DEAR IN: If your fiancée doesn't dig your profession, it's time to bury your relationship.

some neighbors who had just moved into our neighborhood. They agreed to pay me 50 cents an hour and asked me to be at their house at 7:30 P. M. sharp. I got there at about 7:25. They didn't leave the house until 8:30. They came home at 12:30 that evening and paid me two dollars. I didn't say anything. My mother said that since I was asked to be at their home at 7:30 I should have charged them for the time I sat and waited for them to leave. Do you agree with her? Should I mention to them that they owe me 50 cents if they ask me to sit for them again? Or should I refuse to sit for them? They were very nice otherwise. I am a 17-year-old girl.

CHEATED
DEAR CHEATED: Since you accepted the two dollars and said nothing, your silence implied that you were satisfied. Say nothing, but should they ask you to sit for them again, tell them you charge from the time you are asked to be at their home.

DEAR ABBY: I wish you'd settle something for my husband and me. About two years ago we went to a housewarming party for two of our closest friends. We gave them an expensive present. We visit them in their home often and we have never seen our gift in any room. I want to ask about it but my husband thinks it would be rude. What would you do?

LIBBY
DEAR LIBBY: I'd listen to my husband.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I were first married we were so broke our wedding party consisted of us, our witnesses and the preacher. After the ceremony we took them out for dinner. They ordered the most expensive steaks on the menu, so we had to shorten our honeymoon by one day.

A year later, on our anniversary, we had a beautiful wedding with all the trimmings. I had a white gown and veil. White stands for purity, not virginity, and a married woman can be as pure as any virgin. The only difference between this and a first wedding was in our wordings of the invitations, which read, "To the renewal of their vows" instead of "To the marriage of." Our minister said couples can stage a wedding and renew their vows as many times as they wish. In fact, he recommends it. Sincerely, "A RENEWER"

Simple Rules To Keep Feet Comfortable

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

Visiting pavilions at the New York World's Fair is like eating peanuts. You simply can't stop. You're just going to see one more pavilion, then the one next to it looks to intriguing you add it to the itinerary. Before you know it, you've done far more walking than you'd intended.

That's the way with the World's Fair and with sightseeing in general. It's awful on arches unless your feet are prepared for a marathon.

Dr. Joseph Lelyveld, chairman of the National Foot Health Council, says feet will take sightseeing in stride, if you ready them for it with these simple steps.

1. If reddened areas, corns, calluses or foot aches have developed in day-to-day walking, let a podiatrist treat your feet before you treat them to an exhausting round of seeing the sights.

2. Select shoes that are roomy enough for comfortable walking on hot days. Feet swell when weather is warm, so shop for "walking" shoes late in the afternoon after a day on feet and they'll be sure to fit comfortably.

3. Don't get on your high heels for pavilion-hopping at the Fair or you'll come hobbling into the home stretch.

Wear, instead, a shoe with a one-and-a-half inch heel, a closed back and a non-pointy toe. Don't go bare-legged. Protect feet with stockings or socks that are a half-inch longer than the longest toe to avoid cramping.

For comfort, socks made entirely of mercerized cotton yarn are best. The yarn is absorbent. In nylon hose, look for those that have feet made of mercerized cotton.

5. If you're sight-seeing at the Fair or elsewhere, take a break occasionally to give feet a rest. At the Fair, there are countless restaurants and snack bars offering exotic foods. Frequent stops for light refreshment will not only provide a welcome rest but will also give you an opportunity to sample exciting foods from around the world.

6. At the end of a day of pavilion-hopping, treat your feet to a tepid bath and then give them some elevated rest.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Sen. Hubert Humphrey, more than any other Democrat in sight, can match President Johnson in ceaseless energy working with Congress.

It was hardly a coincidence that Johnson, who Wednesday night told the Democratic convention he wanted the Minnesota senator for his vice presidential running mate, let this be known earlier in the week.

If elected, he wants to make more use of his vice president than any president ever did.

Humphrey is a real pro in government. Even the Republican leader of the Senate, Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, called him "the most professional of professionals."

Humphrey has extremely broad support among Democrats across the country, although not so much in the South which remembers he was the one who led the 1964 Civil Rights bill to passage in Congress.

Last July the Associated Press conducted a nationwide poll among delegates to this convention on their vice presidential preference. Humphrey topped the list.

By waiting until the last minute to reveal his choice of a partner in this year's campaign, Johnson was able to sound out opinion and see what groups wanted him to pick the man to ride with him.

Organized labor backs Humphrey. Negroes trust him. He is a shining figure to liberals. Dirksen called him the "modern liberal," a phrase which may look simple but isn't.

Where some congressional liberals appear inflexible in demands and positions, Humphrey without sacrificing principles is willing to compromise on issues to get at least part of what he urges.

He wasn't always that way. When he first came to the Senate in 1949 he was the arch-type of the inflexible liberal, both brash and talkative. He is still talkative. But otherwise there is a difference, as he explained:

"If I believe in something, I will fight for it with all I have. But I do not demand all or nothing. Professional liberals want the fiery debate. They glory in defeat, a sort of political masochism."

"The hardest job for a politician today is to have the courage to be moderate. It is easy to take an extreme position."

But, as Johnson himself said some weeks ago, there were also these factors in his choice of a man who would succeed him if he died:

"I think we want the person that is equipped to handle the duties of the vice presidency, and the presidency, if that awesome responsibility should ever fall upon him. I would like to see a man that is experienced in foreign relations and domestic affairs."

Humphrey fills the bill on both counts. Before Humphrey, now 53, came to Congress he was state director of war production and training in Minnesota during the war, was an assistant director of the War Manpower Commission, and became mayor of Minneapolis where he set up the first municipal peacetime fair employment practices commission.

When he first came to Congress 15 years ago he antagonized southerners and was treated as an outsider by what is called the Senate "Establishment" but now is a respected member of the "Inner Club."

He and Johnson, both arriving in the Senate in 1949, have been friends since. It was Johnson who got Humphrey on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in 1953. He has been on it since, and steadily active in foreign affairs.

He had an eight-hour interview with Premier Khrushchev in 1958 and brought back one of the earliest indications the Russians and Red Chinese might split.

No one perhaps deserves more credit for the nuclear test ban agreement signed with the Soviet Union in 1963. He had worked for it for seven years before then, amid great indifference most of the time.

He set up and headed the Senate's disarmament subcommittee and fathered the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. He has traveled abroad and had a particular interest in Latin America.

In 1960 he introduced a bill to establish the Peace Corps months before Sen. John F. Kennedy advanced the idea in the 1960 presidential campaign. Kennedy established the corps after becoming president.

Humphrey has been equally active in domestic problems. The first bill he introduced as a brand new senator was one to provide medical care for the aged through Social Security. He put the same bill in year after year. It's still an unsettled issue but has Johnson's backing.

He has become an advocate of business-government partnership, meeting with board chairmen, corporation presidents, brokers and bankers, which is what Johnson has done, too.

His biggest achievement, perhaps, was getting through Congress this year's civil rights bill, the strongest measure of its kind in this century.

When Johnson signed it into law and addressed the nation about it, he gave Humphrey a copy of his talk and on the back wrote this note: "To Hubert Humphrey — without whom it couldn't have happened."

Business Briefs

The Ed Irwin Insurance Agency of Ashville has announced that low cost protection is available to students in the Teays Valley, Logan Elm and Westfall School Districts.

Student accident insurance pays medical bills for accidents on the school grounds, going to and from school, while attending and traveling to and from supervised and school sponsored activities as well as religious services. Doctor bills, hospital bills, professional nursing, dental and drug expenses are paid as specified in the master policy.

This coverage is available to all students from kindergarten to high school age, on a nine month basis.

Some 20,000 American school children will start learning to read this fall with a 44-character alphabet devised by a British educator. Each letter represents only one sound.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "What do I do? I do nothing," says Percy Kilbride. "I'm more or less a — well, you might call me a bum."

That's not likely. Kilbride is a spry, crickety, tweed-suited gentleman of 77 years. He is the only Boulevard regular who is recognized by the present generation of movie fans.

"Hey — you're Pa Kettle!" tourists shout at the trim-furred, hawk-nosed man. He gives them a half smile and a cock of the head, then hurries on his way. He spent a half century as an actor and finds that the public remembers him only as the hayseed Pa of the Kettle family series, which he recalls with distaste.

His career started in 1905 in his native San Francisco and nearly ended the next year in the earthquake. He survived but his theater didn't, and he began years of traveling with stock companies, playing a different melodrama weekly. He later made it to Broadway as a popular character man and came to films in the role he created on the stage in "George Washington Slept Here."

Kilbride enjoyed steady employment in films, often as a taxi driver, even though he didn't drive. Then fate was to cast him and Marjorie Main as the rambunctious Kettles in "The Egg and I."

The follow-up series was highly successful. But Kilbride was distressed at playing the same bucolic character, and the sight-gag stunts were too violent for his delicate constitution.

"After my contract was up, I told the studio I wouldn't do any more," he said. "But then a new regime took over Universal. They offered me a limousine to and from work and an amazing amount of money."

"Well, I agreed to do one more. But I made them put in the contract that no one at the studio could even mention the possibility that I might do another one."

Kilbride limped through "Ma and Pa Kettle at Home," the

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara held a news conference July 7 to announce his cost reduction program has saved $2.5 billion last year.

Since then there have been 28 reports — little noticed for the most part — by the General Accounting Office pointing out where it said the Defense Department should have saved even more.

The GAO accountants also produced three additional reports pointing out where they called sloppy supervision on the part of commanders had reduced the combat efficiency of four spot-checked units, including an antiaircraft missile base.

After examining 66 armored personnel carriers and cargo trucks belonging to the 30th Infantry Regiment in Germany, the GAO found 216 major defects and 2,300 less serious ones. The GAO checked out the maintenance on the reconnaissance and liaison aircraft of the 1st and 2nd Armored divisions at Ft. Hood, Tex., and found it so poor that "the combat readiness of these divisions was impaired."

Poor maintenance, said the GAO, was the primary factor in the crash and total loss of a $200,000 aircraft.

At an unidentified antiaircraft missile base somewhere overseas, the GAO reported the management of spare parts was so inefficient that $30 million worth of missile gear was inoperable.

As for the other GAO reports, they include such findings as these:

—The Army wasted $1.3 million buying utility caps which cost $1.08 each and required special laundering, whereas the Marines and Seabees were buying 57-cent utility caps which could be washed under any circumstances.

—At the U.S. Army Engineer depot just outside Seoul, Korea, was $376,000 worth of unneeded spare parts and the depot was in the process of ordering $101,000 more stock it didn't need.

—Further, the Korean depot had suffered a $12.6 million inventory loss which it hadn't investigated.

In 1960 he introduced a bill to establish the Peace Corps months before Sen. John F. Kennedy advanced the idea in the 1960 presidential campaign. Kennedy established the corps after becoming president.

Humphrey has been equally active in domestic problems. The first bill he introduced as a brand new senator was one to provide medical care for the aged through Social Security. He put the same bill in year after year. It's still an unsettled issue but has Johnson's backing.

He has become an advocate of business-government partnership, meeting with board chairmen, corporation presidents, brokers and bankers, which is what Johnson has done, too.

His biggest achievement, perhaps, was getting through Congress this year's civil rights bill, the strongest measure of its kind in this century.

When Johnson signed it into law and addressed the nation about it, he gave Humphrey a copy of his talk and on the back wrote this note: "To Hubert Humphrey — without whom it couldn't have happened."

Business Briefs

The Ed Irwin Insurance Agency of Ashville has announced that low cost protection is available to students in the Teays Valley, Logan Elm and Westfall School Districts.

Student accident insurance pays medical bills for accidents on the school grounds, going to and from school, while attending and traveling to and from supervised activities as well as religious services. Doctor bills, hospital bills, professional nursing, dental and drug expenses are paid as specified in the master policy.

This coverage is available to all students from kindergarten to high school age, on a nine month basis.

Some 20,000 American school children will start learning to read this fall with a 44-character alphabet devised by a British educator. Each letter represents only one sound.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "What do I do? I do nothing," says Percy Kilbride. "I'm more or less a — well, you might call me a bum."

That's not likely. Kilbride is a spry, crickety, tweed-suited gentleman of 77 years. He is the only Boulevard regular who is recognized by the present generation of movie fans.

"Hey — you're Pa Kettle!" tourists shout at the trim-figured, hawk-nosed man. He gives them a half smile and a cock of the head, then hurries on his way. He spent a half century as an actor and finds that the public remembers him only as the hayseed Pa of the Kettle family series, which he recalls with distaste.

His career started in 1905 in his native San Francisco and nearly ended the next year in the earthquake. He survived but his theater didn't, and he began years of traveling with stock companies, playing a different melodrama weekly. He later made it to Broadway as a popular character man and came to films in the role he created on the stage in "George Washington Slept Here."

Kilbride enjoyed steady employment in films, often as a taxi driver, even though he didn't drive. Then fate was to cast him and Marjorie Main as the rambunctious Kettles in "The Egg and I."

The follow-up series was highly successful. But Kilbride was distressed at playing the same bucolic character, and the sight-gag stunts were too violent for his delicate constitution.

"After my contract was up, I told the studio I wouldn't do any more," he said. "But then a new regime took over Universal. They offered me a limousine to and from work and an amazing amount of money."

"Well, I agreed to do one more. But I made them put in the contract that no one at the studio could even mention the possibility that I might do another one."

Kilbride limped through "Ma and Pa Kettle at Home," the

Waste Cited In Pentagon Practices

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara held a news conference July 7 to announce his cost reduction program has saved $2.5 billion last year.

Since then there have been 28 reports — little noticed for the most part — by the General Accounting Office pointing out where it said the Defense Department should have saved even more.

The GAO accountants also produced three additional reports pointing out where what they called sloppy supervision on the part of commanders had reduced the combat efficiency of four spot-checked units, including an anti-aircraft missile base.

After examining 66 armored personnel carriers and cargo trucks belonging to the 30th Infantry Regiment in Germany, the GAO found 216 major defects and 2,300 less serious ones.

The GAO checked out the maintenance on the reconnaissance and liaison aircraft of the 1st and 2nd Armored divisions at Ft. Hood, Tex., and found it so poor that "the combat readiness of these divisions was impaired."

Poor maintenance, said the GAO, was the primary factor in the crash and total loss of a $200,000 aircraft.

At an unidentified anti-aircraft missile base somewhere overseas, the GAO reported the management of spare parts was so inefficient that $30 million worth of missile gear was inoperable.

As for the other GAO reports, they include such findings as these:

—The Army wasted $1.3 million buying utility caps which cost $1.08 each and required special laundering, whereas the Marines and Seabees were buying 57-cent utility caps which could be washed under any circumstances.

—At the U.S. Army Engineer depot just outside Seoul, Korea, was $376,000 worth of unneeded spare parts and the depot was in the process of ordering $101,000 more stock it didn't need.

—Further, the Korean depot had suffered a $12.6 million inventory loss which it hadn't investigated.

Noggles Enjoy Their Tour of Famous European Gardens

The M. E. Noggles, 149 W. Union St., have returned now from their six weeks tour of England and the Continent.

Deep in local activities which includes catching up on their own garden work, you have to get them on the fly. But they will give you an amusing and entertaining impression of their tour if you are persistent.

Widely traveled in America, this was the Noggles' maiden trip abroad. Because Mac Noggle was treasurer of the American Rose Society for a decade or more, he and Mrs. Noggle have had entree to all the outstanding gardens in America, both private and public.

Moreover, they have grown everything growable in this zone in their own garden. So they took with them an immense storehouse of garden knowledge.

Mac Noggle, dean of Pickaway County historians, has a fine background of world history, too. Myrtie Noggle, always alert to current trends, also has a keen interest in history.

ENGLAND

The Noggles agreed that the English gardens were the loveliest of all 11 countries they visited. The English countryside was beautiful indeed. No weeds! Excellent farms with hay, wheat and grass the main crops. The farms, they learned, were part of big estates and rented out to farmers.

They were amazed at the tiny frontyard gardens of every tiny cottage. The flowers were superb. No matter how insignificant the house there was wonderful plant material, rose trees, rhododendrons, tall delphinium.

In London window boxes were filled with foxgloves, lupines and dwarf rhododendron. "Lovely purple," Mrs. Noggle added. She said they had arrived at the prime time to see England's flowers.

London's Bank of England had huge window boxes filled with blue ageratum and pink hydrangeas. Begonias were favored for city planters and one popular combination was asparagus fern with marigolds.

MRS. NOGGLE learned how to make fruit tarts while she was in London.

She spoke of Buckingham Palace as "dingy." "It looks," she maintained, "like the Ohio State Penitentiary."

Mr. and Mrs. Noggle, who talked with Britons of all classes have a deep respect for them. Myrtie Noggle said the people of London drive on the left side and walk everywhere on the street. "Worse than Pumpkin Show," she added.

HOLLAND

One vast greenhouse! According to the Noggles, greenhouses stretched out for miles. And the seasonal favorite of cut flowers seemed to be marigold. They saw them by truckloads. Holland, she explained, sends cut flowers throughout the world.

When they saw the Rugosa rose hedges in Holland they both thought of Bob Brehmer.

At The Hague there were wonderful flower stalls, mostly roses and gladioli. In Holland many espaliered roses against walls interested them. They liked stopping at Holland's sidewalk cafes for Dorste cocoa.

"Good," said Mrs. Noggle. She added, "the coffee was terrible."

BELGIUM

In Belgium the Noggles visited the cemetery for American soldiers and its lovely chapel. Looking at the rows and rows of white crosses saddened Myrtie Noggle. Her thought were: "What a waste! Will we ever learn?"

In Belgium, too, they saw the Flanders poppies blooming, growing wild in great masses.

GERMANY

In Germany the cherry season was at its prime. Their motor coach would stop and one could buy the sweet large red cherries for a song. Going out of Bad Ems, Mrs. Noggle noticed that the locks along the Rhine had flower boxes on them.

The Noggles noted the vast vineyards in the wine country in Germany. On the road past Tiers, they saw masses of pink foxglove and lilac lupine growing in the ditches.

Mrs. Noggle remembered her high school German well enough to make herself understood.

SWITZERLAND

Switzerland was a favorite with the Noggles. They were amused at the custom of locating the barn in front of the house. On one side was the rose garden and on the other side the manure pile.

The flowers were beautiful.

Wild purple lupine grew in masses along Zurich Lake. One small Swiss town they passed through featured window boxes of fuschia.

ITALY

Rome was delightful, according to the travelers. The catacombs were "awesome." And in Genoa they were impressed to learn that Christopher Columbus's birthplace was intact. The Columbus memorial gardens were beautifully planned and nowhere abroad did they see finer gardens.

The oleanders along the Appian Way were in full glory. They grew at least 12 feet high. The flowers were pink, white, yellow, rose and red.

FRANCE

In Nice and at the Riviera the Bougainvillea was in its prime and glory. In Paris the weather was cold, the food delicious and flower arrangements noteworthy.

But no, France was not a favorite with the Noggles. "You know Paris," said Myrtie Noggle. "They put so much emphasis on fashion salons and night club howls!"

We asked the Noggles if they would travel again as members of a tour. Indeed they would! They liked their tour director, Hans Gut, who shouldered all responsibility for the group.

Yes, they are going again. Mrs. Noggle claims she would just like to turn around and start tomorrow. Her advice is: "Save your pennies and take a tour."

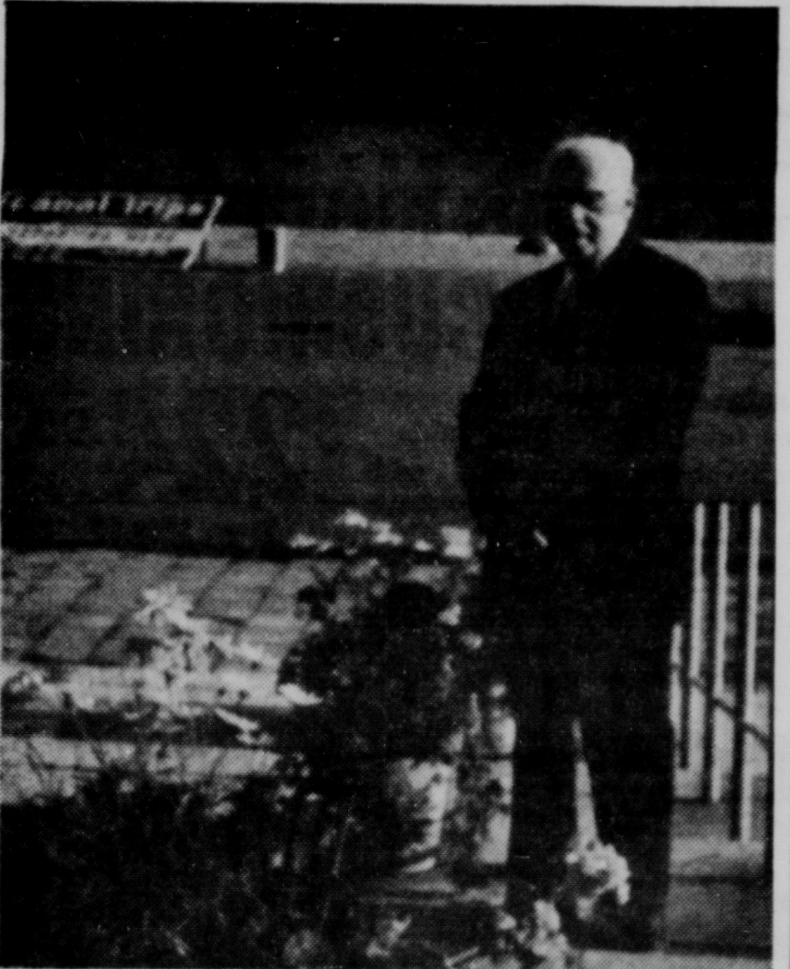

One interesting facet of the tour makes the Noggles chuckle yet. When fellow tourists saw Mrs. Noggle's slim and delicately built frame, they started out by taking very good care of her. "Watch the steep step," they would say. Or "be careful not to overdo now, Mrs. Noggle."

At the end of the tour Myrtie was still in high gear and helping the other members with their luggage. The others, many of them younger, had stopped warning her not to overdo.

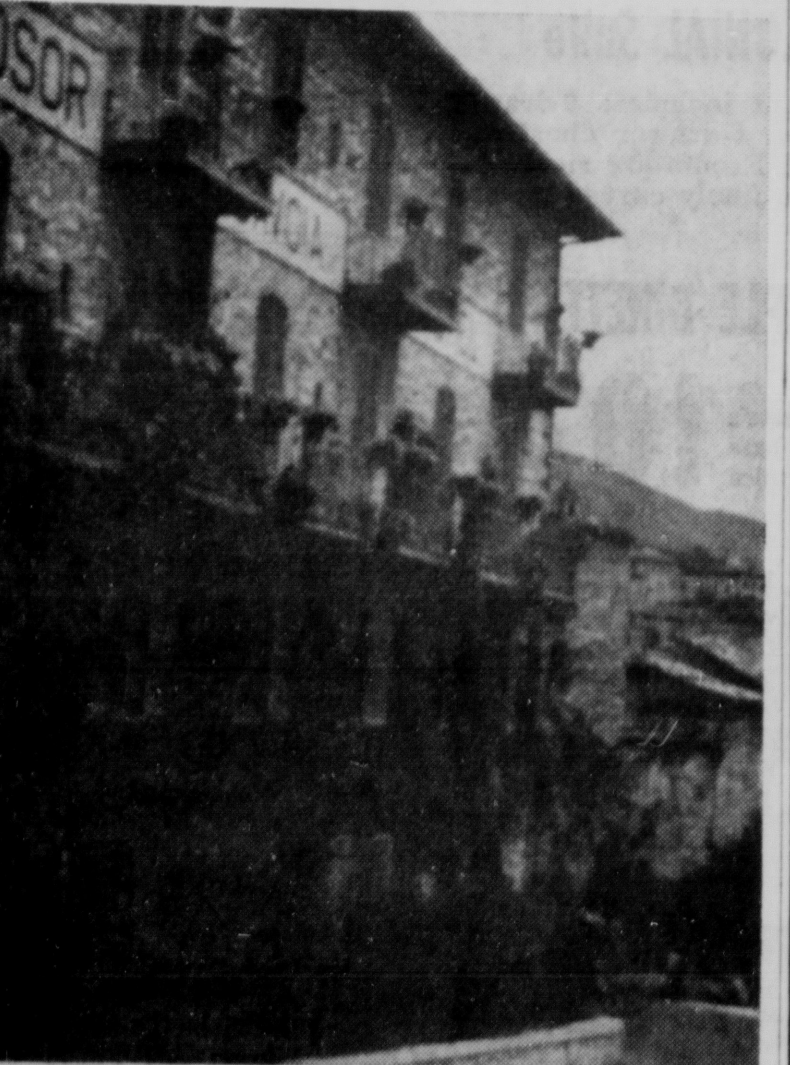

The Noggles insist that theirs was not a garden tour. Maybe not. But they didn't miss a flower.

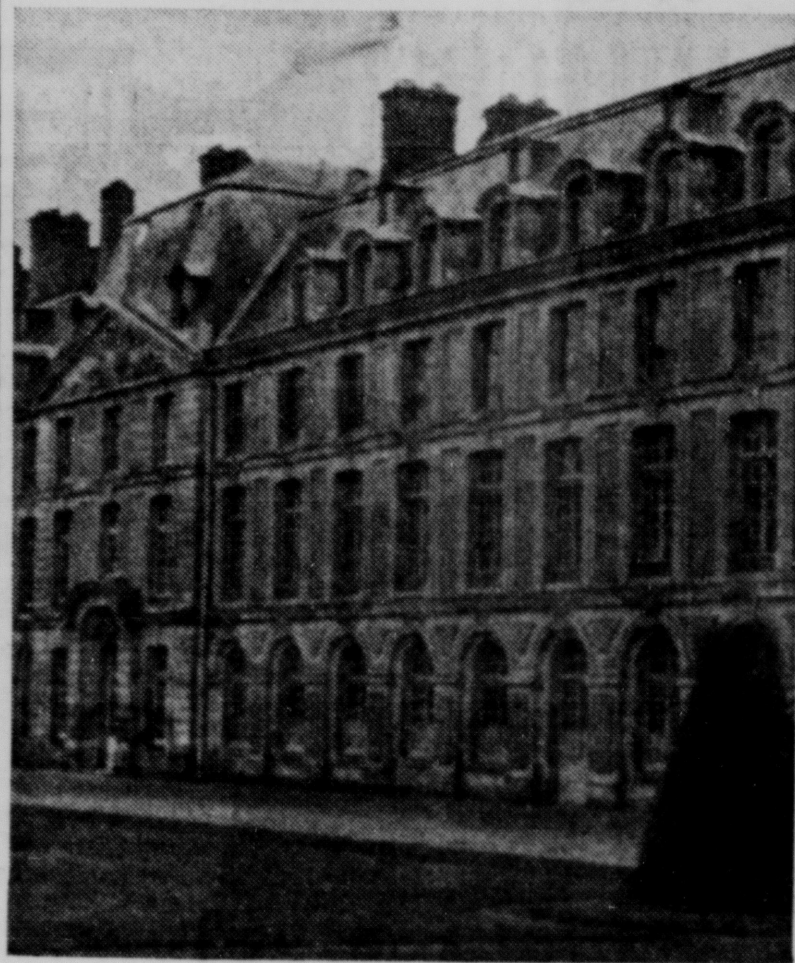

VIEW IN FLORENCE, ITALY — Mrs. M. E. Noggle pauses to look over the olive orchards which are to be seen from a vantage point in the city of Florence. The orchards are gray-green and very beautiful, she says.

PHOTOGRAPHER IN AMSTERDAM — Mac Noggle allows his own picture to be taken on the steps of the hotel overlooking a canal in Amsterdam, Holland. Busy taking pictures of the sights, this was one of the few pictures the local banker brought home of himself. The Noggles did not bring home that first colored slide. They did, however, take many excellent black and white pictures.

WINDOW BOXES AT GENOISE HOTEL — Tourists say that all over Europe, flower-filled planters give color and life to city buildings. Here are the window boxes of the Windsor Hotel in Genoa, Italy. Apartment buildings, banks, inns and department stores all do their part to beautify the cities with window planters.

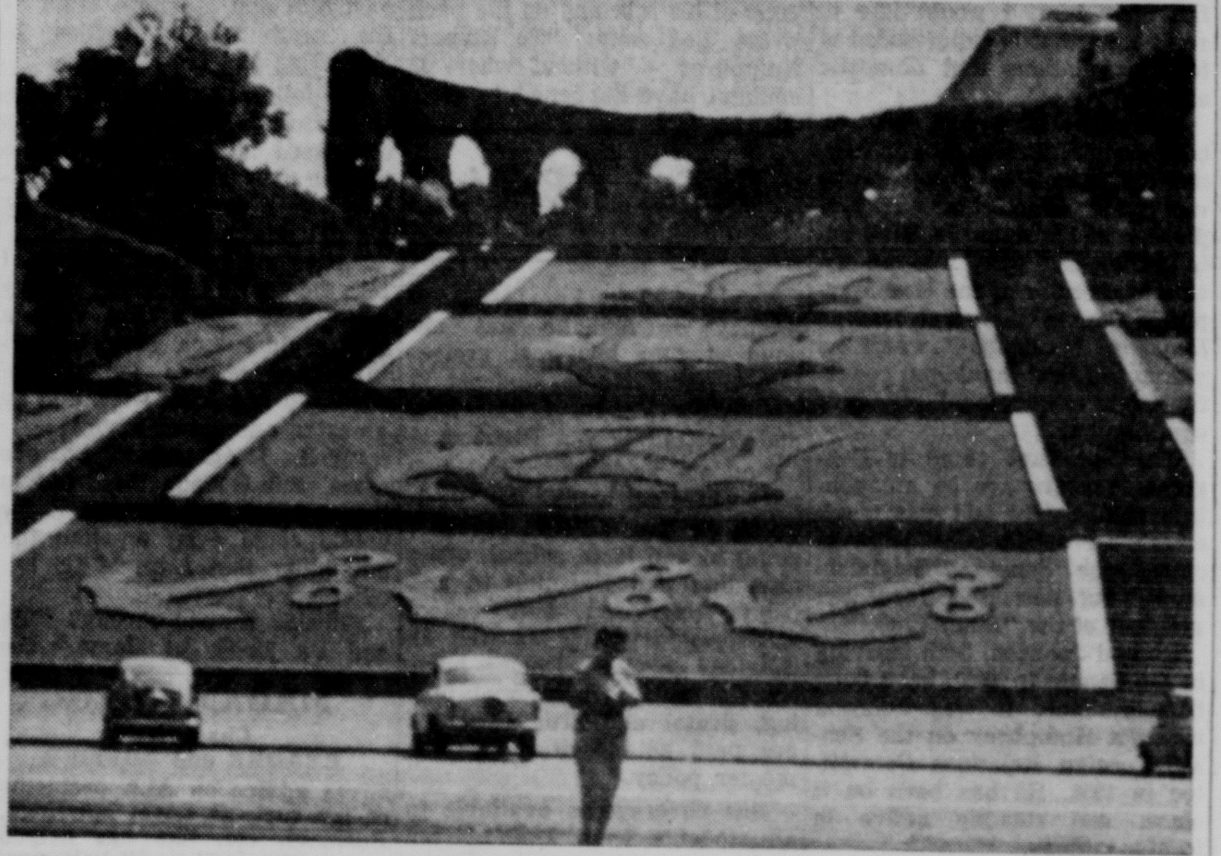

THE PALACE AT FONTAINEBLEAU — Palace gardens at Fontainebleau in France were too tailored for Myrtie Noggle's taste. She had thought they might be more like the Versailles landscaping. "But its just grass, paths and clipped evergreens," she said. "And that was that."

THE LION OF LUCERNE — This well known carving in Lucerne inspired Mrs. Noggle to dub her husband "The Lion of Lucerne" when she caught him taking a pleasant siesta after an excellent meal. The Noggles enjoyed European cuisine which they say is without peer. To their own surprise they found Italian food delightful.

OLEANDERS IN ROME — The ruins of the Roman Forum may be seen in the background, but the oleanders which were splendid beyond imagination in Rome are in the foreground. The Noggles appreciated both. The oleanders, reaching heights of 12 feet, have flowers of pink, white, yellow, rose and red.

MEMORIAL PLANTING TO CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS — One of the most impressive gardens to the Noggles was this one in Genoa, Italy, at the birthplace of Columbus. A renaissance garden, it pictures in floral material the three ships of Columbus when he discovered the new world. A terraced garden, each terrace has an outline of a ship. The last one features three anchors.

CLOISTER GARDENS IN GENOA — Gardens at the birthplace of Christopher Columbus were indeed spectacular, the Noggles said. Here is a view of the garden featuring old arches and much lovely plant material. The local travelers rated these memorial gardens as beautifully planned and a fine sight to see.

CHS Preview Set By Band Mothers

The Circleville High School Band Mothers Preview will be held 8 p. m. Sept. 4, in the football stadium.

The preview is a fund raising project conducted annually the week before school starts. Proceeds go towards the purchase and maintenance of band uniforms.

Uniforms now being used by the band were purchased in 1961 by the mothers' organization. Plans call for new uniforms after 10 years of use, or in 1971.

The entertainment committee has arranged "some very special entertainment" to be included in the program along with several selections by the band.

THE CHS Tigers football squad will also appear as part of the program.

A spokesman for the Band Mothers said a field public address system will be used. This will permit all spectators to hear the various performers.

Tickets are now on sale and may be purchased from the band mothers. Mrs. M. D. Lorentz and Mrs. Walter Pickel are chairmen of the ticket committee.

They announced that prizes will be awarded to members who sell the most tickets.

Ohio Boy's Small World Jolted Twice by Tragedy

CLEVELAND (AP) — David Peck is only 7-years-old but he already knows about tragedy. His small world has been shattered twice in the last eight months.

Last January David's older brother, Darryl, 8, a constant companion and closest friend, died of leukemia. Then last Saturday Peppy, David's 3-month-old puppy, was struck and killed by a car—or cars.

"Something should be done to get these drivers to slow down," the youngster told his mother. "I'm going to write a letter to The Plain Dealer."

This is the letter David printed neatly on lined paper to the morning newspaper.

"Dear Editor:
"My name is David Peck.
"My puppy's name was Peppy."

"He was killed by two cars Saturday afternoon. My dog was the smartest dog on the street."

2 Meters Slated At Library Area

City police announced today that two parking meters will be installed on Pickaway St. next to the Public Library.

The meters will be installed at the two parking stalls next to Main St. Officers said posts for the meter heads already have been erected.

Chief Robert Temple said the meters will be installed as a trial parking control measure. The objective is to provide more parking opportunity for motorists visiting the library.

This Not Time for Peace Talks in Asia, Barry Says

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater sought privacy at sea today after thrusting the guerrilla war in South Viet Nam squarely into his campaign against President Johnson.

Lolling against the stern rail of a borrowed 83-foot yacht Wednesday, Goldwater:

—Declared he thinks the Johnson administration is trying to negotiate a settlement of the Southeast Asian fighting before Election Day; said that timing would be wrong and added he fears such an agreement would be a giveaway to the Communists.

—Said some form of negotiations with Red China "might be profitable" — when pro-Western forces can deal from a position of strength in Southeast Asia.

—Labeled the U.S.-backed war against Communists in South Viet Nam an issue of major concern to the voters in the presidential race.

Goldwater said this is not the time for peace talks. "Before any negotiations are begun that involve us directly or indirectly, we must improve our military position," he said. "I don't think the military situation is such that we have much to bargain with."

Goldwater said he read a newspaper report forecasting negotiations for peace in South Viet Nam. He mentioned a Central Intelligence Agency report, saying it also talked of negotiations.

He said that "is the typical pattern" used to prepare the public for an announcement that negotiations have been held.

"I feel from that that we are considering it and we are closer to it than Congress or the public realize," he said.

Goldwater said any future negotiations should involve as little Communist participation as possible.

But he indicated Red China would have to play a part in any settlement negotiations.

"I've thought for some time that a talk like that with the Red Chinese might be profitable," he said.

But, He added: "I don't think we can possibly come out of any negotiations now with an honorable type of peace with would be honorable to Viet Nam and honorable to those men of ours who fought and died over there."

The enemy should be the one, actually, that should institute negotiations, Goldwater said. "Unless through the United Nations you can find interest in both sides."

Through press secretary Paul Wagner he relayed a clarification of his comments on negotiating with the Communist Chinese.

Wagner said Goldwater, on a ship-to-shore phone, declared that was not his suggestion, but one advanced by military men and civilian experts.

These advisors, Wagner quoted Goldwater as saying, recommended that when the South Vietnamese military situation is improved, the United States send word to Red China demanding that nation stop sending supplies that end up in the hands of Communist guerrillas.

If the Chinese do not halt shipments, Wagner said Goldwater told him, the United States could stage a show of strength to underline its intentions.

CHS Preview Set By Band Mothers

The Circleville High School Band Mothers Preview will be held 8 p. m. Sept. 4, in the football stadium.

The preview is a fund raising project conducted annually the week before school starts. Proceeds go towards the purchase and maintenance of band uniforms.

Uniforms now being used by the band were purchased in 1961 by the mothers' organization. Plans call for new uniforms after 10 years of use, or in 1971.

The entertainment committee has arranged "some very special entertainment" to be included in the program along with several selections by the band.

THE CHS Tigers football squad will also appear as part of the program.

A spokesman for the Band Mothers said a field public address system will be used. This will permit all spectators to hear the various performers.

Tickets are now on sale and may be purchased from the band mothers, Mrs. M. D. Lortz and Mrs. Walter Pickel are chairmen of the ticket committee.

They announced that prizes will be awarded to members who sell the most tickets.

Ohio Boy's Small World Jolted Twice by Tragedy

CLEVELAND (AP) — David Peck is only 7-years-old but he already knows about tragedy. His small world has been shattered twice in the last eight months.

Last January David's older brother, Darryl, 8, a constant companion and closest friend, died of leukemia. Then last Saturday Peppy, David's 3-month-old puppy, was struck and killed by a car—or cars.

"Something should be done to get these drivers to slow down," the youngster told his mother. "I'm going to write a letter to The Plain Dealer."

This is the letter David printed neatly on lined paper to the morning newspaper.

"Dear Editor:
"My name is David Peck.
"My puppy's name was Peppy."

"One of the cars was blue. One of the cars was a red Corvair. The cars were going too fast and could not stop."

"Please ask the drivers to slow down on the streets where there are puppies and children."

Signed: David Peck
Peppy was shipped in July to David from his grandmother, Mrs. Claude DeMyers of Memphis, Tenn. David, a second-grader and one of four children of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson G. Peck Jr., can have another dog if he wants one.

He hasn't asked for one so far, his mother said. He won't part with any of the toys that belonged to Peppy.

"It's hard to believe he's really dead, isn't it," the bright-eyed youngster told his mother Wednesday.

This Not Time for Peace Talks in Asia, Barry Says

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater sought privacy at sea today after thrusting the guerrilla war in South Viet Nam squarely into his campaign against President Johnson.

Lolling against the stern rail of a borrowed 83-foot yacht Wednesday, Goldwater:

—Declared he thinks the Johnson administration is trying to negotiate a settlement of the Southeast Asian fighting before Election Day; said that timing would be wrong and added he fears such an agreement would be a giveaway to the Communists.

—Said some form of negotiations with Red China "might be profitable" — when pro-Western forces can deal from a position of strength in Southeast Asia.

—Labeled the U.S.-backed war against Communists in South Viet Nam an issue of major concern to the voters in the presidential race.

Goldwater said this is not the time for peace talks. "Before any negotiations are begun that involve us directly or indirectly, we must improve our military position," he said. "I don't think the military situation is such that we have much to bargain with."

Goldwater said he read a newspaper report forecasting negotiations for peace in South Viet Nam. He mentioned a Central Intelligence Agency report, saying it also talked of negotiations.

He said that "is the typical pattern" used to prepare the public for an announcement that negotiations have been held.

"I feel from that that we are considering it and we are closer to it than Congress or the public realize," he said.

Goldwater said any future negotiations should involve as little Communist participation as possible.

But he indicated Red China would have to play a part in any settlement negotiations.

"I've thought for some time that a talk like that with the Red Chinese might be profitable," he said.

But, He added: "I don't think we can possibly come out of any negotiations now with an honorable type of peace with would be honorable to Viet Nam and honorable to those men of ours who fought and died over there."

The enemy should be the one, actually, that should institute negotiations, Goldwater said, "unless through the United Nations you can find interest in both sides."

Through press secretary Paul Wagner he relayed a clarification of his comments on negotiating with the Communist Chinese.

Wagner said Goldwater, on a ship-to-shore phone, declared that was not his suggestion, but one advanced by military men and civilian experts.

These advisors, Wagner quoted Goldwater as saying, recommended that when the South Vietnamese military situation is improved, the United States send word to Red China demanding that nation stop sending supplies that end up in the hands of Communist guerrillas.

If the Chinese do not halt shipments, Wagner said Goldwater told him, the United States could stage a show of strength to underline its intentions.

Firemen Summoned

In Sotheby's main gallery, auctioneer Peter Wilson takes final bids on Courbet's "Les Femmes d'Alger (O. J.)." The winning offer for this masterpiece—a neat $173,600!

Sotheby's Has Gained Fame As Center for 'Old Masters'

By JANET BASCOM
Central Press Association Correspondent

LONDON—Beneath the level of Bond Street is a treasure trove comparable to Ali Baba's legendary hoard. The maze of merchandise which looks like loot from several castles is but the storeroom of Sotheby and Co., Auctioneers.

Known for the enormous prices it has acquired for art, Sotheby's (pronounced Soth-er-bee's) building facade is an unpretentious cream-colored affair, marked only by the name in black letters on the second story. Yet it's easily the most famous enterprise on that famous street, reputed for its ability to sell other people's property.

Dealing in precious pieces of history like the battered bugle that sounded the "Charge of the Light Brigade," is a Sotheby specialty. It was sold this spring for $4,400.

The fantasy of Sothebys is actually below the level of the public galleries, in the store-rooms and an old wine cellar. Its something to see a delicate piece of Meissen or Bisque in a drawing room, but to see tables loaded with the figures like some sort of white elephant sale is something else again.

"Old Masters" paintings, stacked leaning against the walls, extend so far into corridors that one must shuffle carefully along, edging around a suit of armor, then leaning against an Oriental cabinet when a lad comes by carrying an altar figure.

It is a labyrinth of rooms, one nearby containing exquisite candelabra and clocks, while the next is stacked with rolled-up Persian rugs. A bronze head of Haile Selassie by Epstein stands at the bottom of the wine cellar stairs.

Inside the dark green doors recently, bidding for 50 Kandinsky paintings from the Guggenheim Foundation ended at $1.5 million in just over an hour. The big sale of the year, a collection of impressionists' works, brought over $3 million this spring.

The ability to get such prices for impressionist paintings pulled Sotheby's onto its present pinnacle of world fame, particularly since a day in 1958 when the auctioneer brought in bids of over $2 million for only seven paintings. This status is maintained by 40 staff experts who judge authenticity and value, then accept or reject.

Huge bids are the headline makers, but a Sotheby's spokesman doesn't hesitate to emphasize that last year about 25 per cent of their paintings sold for less than $60. Thus the rich and the titled aren't the only ones to go through those doors under Sekh-Met's head.

$150,000 HAIR-DO FOR CHARLEY—That much-in-the-news baseball man, Charles O. Finley, owner of the Kansas City Athletics, gets himself all set for the Beatles during a Chicago visit as he awaits their appearance at the K. C. Municipal Stadium September 17 at a price of $150,000. That's Ringo Starr he's following for the hair-do. Finley said all profits from their appearance will go to charity.

Driver Fined $250 Here

Beryl O. Mankin, 53, Mt. Sterling, was fined $250 and costs yesterday in Circleville Municipal Court.

Mankin was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicants and with driving without a license.

Entering pleas of guilty to both charges, he was fined $150 on the first and $100 on the second. However, Judge Lamb ordered $50 of the fine suspended, placing the Mt. Sterling resident on probation for two years.

He also levied the usual three-day jail sentence and suspended Mankin's driver's rights for six months. Two other cases were:

Vernard Mathena Jr., 26, Colburn, Va.; $50 and costs for speeding 80 miles per hour in a 50 mile zone.

James D. Strader, 23, Cleveland; $15 and costs for speeding 65 miles per hour in a 50 mile zone.

Four Receive Emergency Aid

The majority of persons receiving emergency aid at Berger Hospital yesterday suffered injuries resulting from industrial accidents. A total of four persons were treated and released.

Charles Tilton, 29, of 434 E. Union St., an employee of the J. Boyd Stout Co., lacerated his right foot while operating a bulldozer.

Dale Barnhart, 38, Route 2, slipped and fell on a wagon chain, causing lacerations to his right leg.

Ronald Long, 29, Chillicothe, lacerated his left arm on a knife while at work.

Denny Mogan, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Mogan Jr., 142 Water St., suffered a laceration to his scalp after he was struck by a rock at Hargus Lake.

Garden Gossip

We wish everybody in Pickaway County could have gone to the flower show last Friday, which was held in the home of the Roush sisters near Washington C. H.

This was a placement show and the lovely arrangements were made for the places in which they were exhibited.

The Roush home is Victorian and every square inch of it is lovely. The floors, the walls, the stairway, the drapes — everything is in exquisite taste. Added to this, the excellent arrangements made it a most outstanding show.

I kept wishing for Mary Shortridge when I attended this flower show. The Roush sisters had hooked the rugs and the stair carpeting for the house.

And rain or no rain, the Roush garden was very lovely. And you could see it from many of the windows in the house.

There were 25 classes in this non-competitive flower show which was judged by Mrs. Nell Hughes of Clarksburg. The judge did not award ribbons but made comments on each arrangement.

The flower show was to have been held at night, too. The electric company had wired the gardens for night lighting and the Sisters told me that the lights really flattered the lovely garden.

Our first thought was that all flowers were florist grown until we saw the excellent posies in the garden. One bed was entirely of salmon pink geraniums. It was bordered Political . . .

(Continued from Page One) took form here early, and by the first of this week its switchboard was so jammed you repeatedly got busy signals when you tried to dial it.

Walter Jenkins, a longtime friend and administrative assistant, was chief of staff of the operations.

Often you would hear this phrase: "He talked with the White House about that." This could mean he talked with Johnson; more probably it meant he talked with an assistant.

Perhaps the most significant thing in all this is how complete the planning was.

Clifton Carter, who looks after endless political details for Johnson, and Richard Maquire, Democratic treasurer, had a series of workshops going this week which in effect laid the groundwork for the fall campaigns.

All 50 states had representatives present who were told how to take advantage of research material worked up by the national committee, how to organize Young Citizens for LBJ, how to provide publicity, how to pep up women's activities, how to encourage citizen groups and how to turn out zippy campaign material.

Carter also has the responsibility of making sure everything runs smoothly in Convention Hall. An elaborate phone system keeps him within instant touch of each delegation.

He was explaining this as he was returning from lunch. Suddenly his coat pocket started to buzz. Carter took out a small radio receiver and switched it off.

"This means I have a call," he said, "I've got to get to a phone."

As you can see, not many bets were overlooked in Atlantic City.

The Roush grapes were like those described in the Bible that were found in the land of Canaan. Magnificent!

The Ward yard on Walnut St. has containers of bright red petunias which are indeed showy. Sweet potato vines grow in the same containers. "Tater vines are showy, too.

Mrs. Eugene Hanson, Northridge Road, has a fine specimen of pokeweed at the corner of her house. Pokeweed is handsome, a perennial and can be a pest.

When pokeweed first comes through the ground its spears are edible. . . and very good. We understand the berries are poison. We made ink out of them when we were kids but we were always cautioned never to eat them.

Mrs. Ted Corcoran, Williamsport, had a thriving planting of delphinium, lacy pinks and pink Oriental poppies. The plants were doing so well she thought she'd be able to share with all her garden friends. Since residents in Williamsport were asked not to water their gardens, she lost many of the plants.

Experts say not to have zoysia grass in this climate because it turns brown in cold weather. Well, bluegrass turns brown in hot, dry weather.

This is lawn making time. Get busy if you want to reseed or make a new lawn.

The Denman place on Northridge Road has fine zinnias. We go slow when we pass this house in August because they have autumn crocus.

The Kenny Hannans have one of the greenest lawns in town. During a prolonged dry spell, it not only takes water and lots of it but also considerable patience and time to keep the grass green.

The mailbox at the Grover Wolfe home has golden glow planted in back of it. This common and old fashioned plant looks quite stately in this spot. This place is near Whisler.

Golden Glow used to be one of the few August blooming perennials found in gardens at this time. A harsh yellow, it frequently quarrels with flowers of other colors.

We noticed golden glow was used pleasingly in several arrangements at the Ross County Fair. It has been such a dry summer it was one of the few perennials to survive.

Golden Glow used to be a victim of mildew. But we recommend it nevertheless as one of the reliable August bloomers.

Mrs. Claude Crawford of near Whisler has used morning glories as a background for her mailbox planting. In front she has planted straw flowers of gomphrena and dwarf marigolds.

The Jim Wolfords of Route 1, Kingston, have magnificent bittersweet. Mrs. Wolford believes it does so well because the berries are never picked but left on the vine from year to year. She only picks her bittersweet for out of state relatives.

PUBLIC NOTICE
To any department or agency of the State of Ohio or any political subdivision thereof, or any quasi public board or agency:

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, THAT:
(1) Pursuant to Secs. 123.681 and 123.682, Revised Code, pertaining to the sale or transfer of certain unnecessary or unused State canal lands, the Department of Public Works is conducting a survey to determine the future need of said canal lands for projects of public nature. Portions of said canal lands referred to as Parcel Nos. O&E-PIC-19.215 plus; O&E-PIC-25.615 plus; O&E-PIC-29.215 plus; O&E-PIC-32.75.09 plus; O&E-PIC-32.75.081, are described as follows:

Parcel No. O&E-PIC-19.215 plus Being that portion of the abandoned Ohio and Erie Canal property, situated in Circleville Twp., Pickaway County, Ohio, presently leased to Ernest Adams and Anna Schwalbach (O&E-783), beginning at the northern line of the lands of the Circleville Ice Company, at or near Station 19 plus 21.5 of the Sanzenbacher Survey and running thence northerly with the lines of said canal property 500 feet, except that portion of said canal property which has been sold to The Norfolk and Western Railway, containing 0.82 acre, more or less, and being further described on Sanzenbacher Survey, Plat No. 161 on file in the Department of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

Parcel No. O&E-PIC-25.615 plus Being that portion of the abandoned Ohio and Erie Canal property, located in Circleville Twp., Pickaway County, Ohio, presently leased to James E. Kochensperger (O&E-784), beginning at Sta. 25 plus 61.5 of the Sanzenbacher Survey and extending northerly with the lines of said canal property 360 feet, more or less, to Sta. 29 plus 13.5, excepting therefrom that portion of said canal property sold to The Norfolk and Western Railway, containing 0.40 acre, more or less, and being further described on Sanzenbacher Survey, Plat No. 161 on file in the Department of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

Parcel No. O&E-PIC-29.215 plus Being that portion of the abandoned Ohio and Erie Canal property, located in the City of Circleville, Pickaway County, Ohio, presently leased to W. H. Leist (O&E-1268), beginning at Sta. 29 plus 0.9 of the Sanzenbacher Survey, thence southeasterly 129.8 feet, more or less, to Sta. 32 plus 78.8, said Station 32 plus 78.8, being the northern line of Main Street and containing 15.473 sq. ft., more or less, and being further described on Sanzenbacher Survey, Plat No. 161 on file in the Department of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

Parcel No. O&E-PIC-32.75.09 plus Being that portion of the abandoned Ohio and Erie Canal property, including the full width of the bed of a way, located in the City of Circleville, Pickaway County, Ohio, presently leased to The Circleville Ice Company (O&E-303), beginning at the northern line of Mound Street in said city and running thence northerly with the lines of said canal property, 150 ft., more or less, to the southerly line, produced across said canal property, of the first alley northerly from Mound Street, and containing 13,900 square feet, more or less, and further described on Helby Survey Plot No. 161 on file in the Department of Public Works, Columbus, Ohio.

Applications for the above described lands may be submitted to ALFRED C. GIENOW, DIRECTOR, DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS, 707 OHIO DEPARTMENT BUILDING, COLUMBUS, 15, OHIO, and must be on file on or before September 10, 1964.

(3) All applications shall be accompanied by evidence, satisfactory to the Director of Public Works, that lands sought to be obtained will be used solely for public purposes.

(4) If no application is received within the above specified time, it will be assumed that no department or agency of the State of Ohio, or any political subdivision thereof, or any quasi public board or agency, has any present or future need for the above State canal lands, and said lands will then be sold to the above named lessees in accordance with Sec. 123.681, Revised Code.

Caribbean but South America is getting comparatively few of them. And with American tourism a growing industry, wooed by many countries, the continent to the south may be missing a good bet.

That is the opinion of banking economists specializing in the financial relations of the Western Hemisphere. Their conclusion is that South American countries just aren't trying hard enough to get their share.

Americans last year spent $448 million in Mexico. U.S. travelers, mostly tourists, spent $150 million in 1963 in the Caribbean area. About 100,000 Americans spent $56 million traveling in South America, and a good part of that probably was spent on business trips rather than tourist jaunts.

The South American share of the total U.S. expenditure on tourist travel last year was only 2.5 per cent, little changed in the last five years when American travel abroad was increasing by leaps and bounds.

The Department of Commerce reports U.S. residents last year spent $3.2 billion in travel out of the country, much for pleasure though some for business. This was a gain of 11 per cent over 1962.

Admittedly, Mexico and the islands to the south have the advantage of closeness and less expensive transportation cost. But economists at the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York say that equally important have been the efforts made to attract tourists. These include advertising and setting up information centers in the United States, as well as upgrading hotel, dining and transportation facilities.

The bank economists report: "Last year, Mexican exports totaled $982 million, while tourism from all countries pulled in some $655 million. This permitted the country to show a $144-million surplus in its over-all balance of payments."

Jamaica is another example. Its total merchandise exports last year came to $26 million, but receipts from U.S. tourists were $40 million.

The economists say Venezuela and Colombia have made some efforts to get in on the gravy but the rest of South America has done very little.

Industry Hits Peak In July

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Industrial expansion in Ohio hit a record high in July, the state Department of Development says.

Deputy Development Director F. O. Neuenschwander, in a report issued Wednesday, said new firms and plant expansions in July alone would provide 3,400 new jobs for Ohio workers.

The report said the new firms and expansions add more than $283 million in capital investment to the state's industrial establishment.

The department report, which went to Gov. James A. Rhodes, also said Ohio was first in the nation in increased capital investment for the 10-year period from 1952-1962. The department said the latter information was based on U.S. government figures.

"The expansions announced here during July show that we are not only continuing to grow but our growth is at a faster pace," Neuenschwander said.

The report said about every section of Ohio shared in the industrial growth. Thirty-five counties added new jobs from the new and expanded firms.

The department said Butler County led the list with more than 1,000 new jobs, primarily the result of the new Armo facility there.

4-Day Harness Racing Card Opens Monday at State Fair

The Ohio State Fair race card is rated as the best speed programs in the Midwest.

The first of four rich stakes will be run off Monday. This will be the $27,000 Ohio State Trot for two-year-olds.

No particular horse rates the tag of favorite for this nationally rated trot. Florican Flash, trained and driven by Gene Reigle for owner George Schumaker of Dayton, could possibly be considered the early choice. He has posted a best time of 2:06.6 this season.

Top competition is expected to come from LaFlame, winner of the colt stakes at Hilliard, Nu Hill, Etta Frisco and Rican Ros — all winners at earlier fairs.

Richest of four stakes, the $29,000 Buckeye State Pace for two-year-olds, will be Tuesday's headliner. Final entries going to the post may number 25 and boost the stake monies close to $30,000.

Bruce Nickells' entry, Good One, carries the favorite's tag with a mark of 2:07.2. Shoulder-

Royal J. Win Scheduled At Scioto

Harry and Forrest Short will send their 3-year-old pacing ace Royal J. Win postward tomorrow night in the Scarlet and Gray Cup at Scioto Downs.

The purse for the featured race is $5,040. Six sidewheelers will go to the post, with Bye Time a slight favorite on the early morning line.

Owned by the MacJay Stable of Portsmouth, Bye Time has the fastest time this year of six speedy entrants. Trained and driven by George Williams, this bay son of Times Square-Bid Adieu, owns a lifetime record of 2:02.4.

Bill Yocum, Gayliner, Adios Penny and Billy Davis round out the Scarlet and Gray Cup field.

The 1964 night harness racing season will come to a close at Scioto Downs Sept. 7.

High Finance Golf Decried

Hogan Sees Game Hurt by Payoff

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — High finance on the pro tour has dulled the incentive of many golfers and turned them into parasites, Ben Hogan said today.

"It's not a matter of the big purses but the way the money is distributed," the four-time National Open winner said.

"A fellow doesn't have to work on his game any more. All he has to do is show up for a tournament. He can finish far down the list, pick up a pretty good paycheck and make a comfortable living on the efforts of others."

"The money distribution system is all wrong. The big money should go to the leaders, the fellows such as Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Ken Venturi who are out there always struggling to improve their game. The couldn't-care-less fellows should get little or nothing."

Hogan, now 52 and returning to the Oakland Hills scene where he won the third of his Opens 13 years ago, failed to specify a particular tournament but he virtually drew a map of the $200,000 Carling World Championship, beginning here today.

The sport's richest event has a prize list scaled down from $35,000 for first and $1,000 for second to $1,000-and-over for 36 places. Each of the 155 players teeing off, 48 of them from 13 foreign nations, is assured $400.

All the name players of the world are entered here, with Nicklaus bidding to nail down his position as the year's leading money winner ($99,000-plus) and Palmer, No. 2, and British Open champion Tony Lema, No. 3, in a position to take over through a victory.

Venturi, the National Open champion, is playing so superbly and with such confidence he has been made the No. 1 favorite.

Courtesy, Politics Cited by Stengel

CINCINNATI (AP) — Casey Stengel, the agile-minded manager of the New York Mets, discussed courtesy and politics along with baseball Wednesday night after his club defeated Cincinnati 3-1.

"I thought we were at the political (Democratic) convention in Atlantic City one time there," Stengel said.

He was referring to an incident in the sixth inning when the Mets were at bat.

Reds' pitcher Joey Jay had thrown a quick one to the plate with Ron Hunt at bat. The umpire called it no pitch. Jay tipped his cap to Hunt.

"I thought we were at the convention," Stengel said, with a grin. "Buy maybe CBS is getting 'em to be more friendly."

Columbia Broadcasting System recently purchased majority stock of the New York Yankees.

Logan Elm Squad Sets Sights on Improving Record

Logan Elm's 1964 football team will be out to improve on a 7-3 overall record and a second place finish in the Scioto Valley Conference.

Coach Keith Merrin and his assistant, Jerry Leist, both feel the team will be in definite contention for the conference title.

Merrin noted other conference coaches tabbed Unioto as the favorite this year. "And Piketon (last year's football king) could be the team to beat," the Braves mentor continued.

Paint Valley could also be strong, although in the past the Bearcats have lacked depth. This could be a problem for them again this year, Merrin feels.

THE OTHER two teams in the league are Westfall and Laurelville. The Mustangs of Westfall will be completely inexperienced, being the conference's newest school. The Wildcats have been the perennial cellar dwellers of the loop.

The Braves have 11 returning lettermen. Most of the experience is in the backfield where they will have Jeff Lutz, a three-year veteran, calling the signals. At fullback, Bill Huffman seems to be the leading candidate, while Bob Stant and Rick Shaw will be running from the halfback slots.

Battling for a starting position are Roy Strawser, a halfback; Rod Hedges, who has been working out both at halfback and fullback, and Steve Burger.

Burger is a transfer student from Pleasant View.

Along the line, Merrin has veterans returning in Brent Rhoads, center; Neil Wolfe and Mike Temple, tackles; Jim Moorehead and Louis Jordan at end; and Mike Spangler, who has been shifted from halfback, where he lettered last year, to end.

Gary Black, a sophomore, and Rick Rawlins, a junior, are currently two leading candidates at guard.

RESERVE strength along the line will come from Bruce Wolford and Al Gabriel at tackles and Don Benner at end. All are sophomores.

Named as a sophomore to watch in the backfield is Ken Palmer who alternates between quarterback and halfback.

There were 57 candidates reporting for physicals and the initial practice sessions. Only five have dropped from the roster.

The team numbers eight

CHS Grad Listed On Toledo Roster

Dave Hannahs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hannahs, is listed as one of 29 sophomores expected to report for football practice Tuesday at the University of Toledo.

Hannahs was the quarterback of Circleville High School's undefeated football team in 1962. He is a quarterback candidate at Toledo.

The Rockets' squad is one of the smallest, both numerically and physically in recent years, according to a report from the university.

There are only 17 upper classmen on the roster and only 12 returning lettermen.

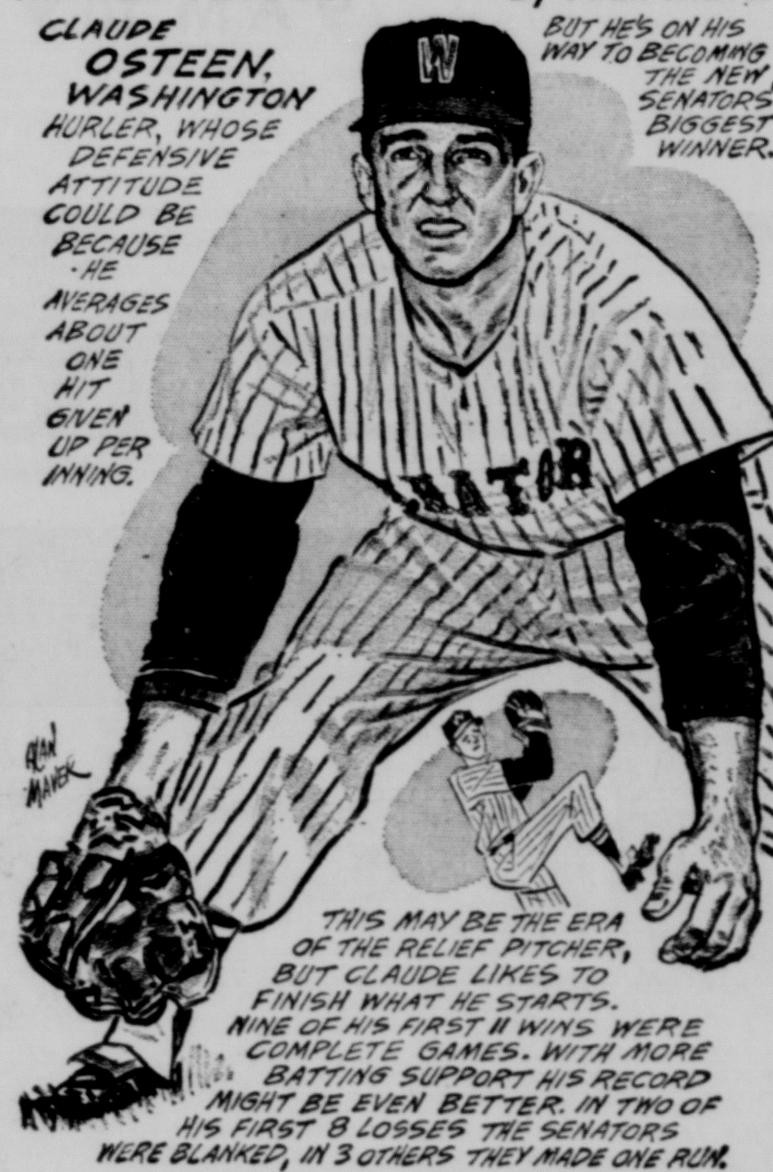

Hutchinson Slated To Leave Hospital

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds manager Fred Hutchinson leaves Christ Hospital today, but Bill DeWitt, general manager, said nothing about plans for him to return to his job.

Hutchinson, stricken with chest cancer last winter, entered the hospital last Aug. 14, the day after he observed his 45th birthday. He had undergone hospital treatment previously. Ballplayers who visited his room Wednesday said they found him in good spirits, looking good and that he had told them he was feeling better.

Locals Win Pitching Duel

Brown Stars on Hill, At Plate for Locals

Pitching highlighted Circleville Tournament action last night when the Circleville All-Stars beat Worthington, 1-0.

The winners carded one single and Worthington managed three.

The Circleville All-Stars scored the only tally of the game in the first inning. Dick Walters, hitting in the second slot, walked. Bryce Brown followed with the single and Walters scored.

Brown hurled the entire game for the winners. He walked five batters and fanned 17, while issuing three safeties.

James was on the mound for the losing Worthington unit. He walked four and fanned eight batters.

EACH pitcher received solid support from his teammates — both squads committing double plays, and both allowing one error.

Zeidana, Belknap and Jones tagged losing singles.

Muskingum Collegian Handed Indian Bonus

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians announced today the signing of Roger Post of Muskingum College to a bonus contract.

A 20-year-old shortstop, he won All-Ohio Conference honors the past two seasons and batted .440 for Muskingum this past year.

Post, a right-handed batter, signed a 1965 contract with Duquesne of the Class A Midwest League, a Cleveland farm club. The size of the bonus was not disclosed.

Ohio Golfer Second In United Golf Test

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Defending champion Lee Elder of Cleveland, Ohio, was in the second spot today as the third round of the United Golf Association's national open tournament got under way. Elder shot a second round 67 Wednesday, one more than the leader, Willie Brown of Houston, Tex., who had a 66.

Renee Powell of East Canton, Ohio, remained the odds-on favorite to win the women's amateur event. She beat Carrie Jones of Jackson, Miss., 5 and 4, Wednesday.

Former assistant Army coach Tom Harp is in his fourth season as Correll's football coach.

Richest of four stakes, the $29,000 Buckeye State Pace for two-year olds, will be Tuesday's headline. Final entries going to the post may number 25 and boost the stake monies close to $30,000.

Bruce Nickells' entry, Good One, carries the favorite's tag with a mark of 2:07.2. Shoulder-to-shoulder behind the starting gate will be Adican and Tuxedo Hanover. The latter, with Curly Smart at the lines, could be the winner.

Glamour race for three-year-old side wheelers will be Wednesday's Director of Agriculture Pace with $25,000 in stakes.

Combat Time, another Bruce Nickells' entry, will go to the post in the role of favorite with his lifetime earnings of $54,953. Later, he has set a new track record of 2:09.8 at Mt. Vernon, won the three-year-old pace race at Hilliard and took the event in straight heats at the Martinsville, Illinois, Fair.

To win at the Ohio State Fair, though, he'll have to fight off the likes of Paper Brey, McMo, Timely Truth and the Golden Bear from Jackie Nicklaus' stable. Another hopeful is Winged Pack, winner of seven races and a best mark of 2:03.6.

Thursday, the country's outstanding trotter will go to the post for the Governor's Cup Trot and $54,000 in stakes. This will be Argo Kid, the season's record-holder for three-year-old geldings on a half-mile oval, a 2:04.2 mark.

The Ohio Valley trotter has started 21 times to win 12 and earn well over $29,000. Argo Kid has been busy at the tracks over East, making a start every five days and posting wins at Saratoga, Vernon Downs and Monticello.

Chief competition is expected to come from Underpass, Lauren, Vicki Hill and First Dividend. Dark horse will be Single Valley, trained by Eddie Boyer and winner of the event at Keosauqua.

Owned by the MacJay Stable of Portsmouth, Bye Time has the fastest time this year of six speedy entrants. Trained and driven by George Williams, this bay son of Times Square-Bid Adieu, owns a lifetime record of 2:02.4.

Bill Yocum, Gayliner, Adios Penny and Billy Davis round out the Scarlet and Gray Cup field. The 1964 night harness racing season will come to a close at Scioto Downs Sept. 7.

High Finance Golf Decried

Hogan Sees Game Hurt by Payoff

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — High finance on the pro tour has dulled the incentive of many golfers and turned them into parasites, Ben Hogan said today.

"It's not a matter of the big purses but the way the money is distributed," the four-time National Open winner said.

"A fellow doesn't have to work on his game any more. All he has to do is show up for a tournament. He can finish far down the list, pick up a pretty good paycheck and make a comfortable living on the efforts of others."

"The money distribution system is all wrong. The big money should go to the leaders, the fellows such as Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Ken Venturi who are out there always struggling to improve their game. The couldn't-care-less fellows should get little or nothing."

Hogan, now 52 and returning to the Oakland Hills scene where he won the third of his Opens 13 years ago, failed to specify a particular tournament but he virtually drew a map of the $200,000 Carling World Championship, beginning here today.

The sport's richest event has a prize list scaled down from $35,000 for first and $1,000 for second to $1,000-and-over for 36 places. Each of the 155 players teeing off, 48 of them from 13 foreign nations, is assured $400.

All the name players of the world are entered here, with Nicklaus bidding to nail down his position as the year's leading money winner ($99,000-plus) and Palmer, No. 2, and British Open champion Tony Lema, No. 3, in a position to take over through a victory.

Venturi, the National Open champion, is playing so superbly and with such confidence he has been made the No. 1 favorite.

COURTESY, POLITICS Cited by Stengel

CINCINNATI (AP) — Casey Stengel, the agile-minded manager of the New York Mets, discussed courtesy and politics along with baseball Wednesday night after his club defeated Cincinnati 3-1.

"I thought we were at the political (Democratic) convention in Atlantic City one time there," Stengel said.

He was referring to an incident in the sixth inning when the Mets were at bat.

Reds' pitcher Joey Jay had thrown a quick one to the plate with Ron Hunt at bat. The umpire called it no pitch. Jay tipped his cap to Hunt.

"I thought we were at the convention," Stengel said, with a grin. "Buy maybe CBS is getting 'em to be more friendly."

Columbia Broadcasting System recently purchased majority stock of the New York Yankees.

Logan Elm Squad Sets Sights on Improving Record

Logan Elm's 1964 football team will be out to improve on a 7-3 overall record and a second place finish in the Scioto Valley Conference.

Coach Keith Merrin and his assistant, Jerry Leist, both feel the team will be in definite contention for the conference title.

Merrin noted other conference coaches tabbed Unioto as the favorite this year. "And Piketon (last year's football king) could be the team to beat," the Braves mentor continued.

Paint Valley could also be strong, although in the past the Bearcats have lacked depth. This could be a problem for them again this year, Merrin feels.

THE OTHER two teams in the league are Westfall and Laureville. The Mustangs of Westfall will be completely inexperienced, being the conference's newest school. The Wildcats have been the perennial cellar dwellers of the loop.

The Braves have 11 returning lettermen. Most of the experience is in the backfield where they will have Jeff Lutz, a three-year veteran, calling the signals. At fullback, Bill Huffman seems to be the leading candidate, while Bob Stant and Rick Shaw will be running from the halfback slots.

Battling for a starting position are Roy Strawser, a halfback; Rod Hedges, who has been working out both at halfback and fullback, and Steve Burger.

Burger is a transfer student from Pleasant View. Along the line, Merrin has veterans returning in Brent Rhoads, center; Neil Wolfe and Mike Temple, tackles; Jim Moorehead and Louis Jordan at end; and Mike Spangler, who has been shifted from halfback, where he lettered last year, to end.

Gary Black, a sophomore, and Rick Rawlins, a junior, are currently two leading candidates at guard.

RESERVE strength along the line will come from Bruce Wolford and Al Gabriel at tackles and Don Benner at end. All are sophomores.

Named as a sophomore to watch in the backfield is Ken Palmer who alternates between quarterback and halfback.

There were 57 candidates reporting for physicals and the initial practice sessions. Only five have dropped from the roster.

The team numbers eight seniors, 11 juniors, 29 sophomores and 13 freshmen.

The Logan Elm coaches have been taking advantage of the cooler morning and evening hours. They are starting morning practices at 7 and evening sessions at 5:30.

When school opens Sept. 1, they will go to one-a-day drill. Here is the schedule for the coming season:

Sept. 11 — Laureville
Sept. 18 — at Amanda
Sept. 25 — at Sheridan
Oct. 2 — Teays Valley
Oct. 9 — Frazesburg
Oct. 16 — Westfall
Oct. 23 — Unioto
Oct. 30 — at Piketon
Nov. 6 — at Paint Valley

CHS Grad Listed On Toledo Roster

Dave Hannahs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hannahs, is listed as one of 29 sophomores expected to report for football practice Tuesday at the University of Toledo.

Hannahs was the quarterback of Circleville High School's undefeated football team in 1962. He is a quarterback candidate at Toledo.

The Rockets' squad is one of the smallest, both numerically and physically in recent years, according to a report from the university.

There are only 17 upper classmen on the roster and only 12 returning lettermen.

Hutchinson Slated To Leave Hospital

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds manager Fred Hutchinson leaves Christ Hospital today, but Bill DeWitt, general manager, said nothing about plans for him to return to his job.

Hutchinson, stricken with chest cancer last winter, entered the hospital last Aug. 14, the day after he observed his 45th birthday. He had undergone hospital treatment previously.

Ballplayers who visited his room Wednesday said they found him in good spirits, looking good and that he had told them he was feeling better.

Locals Win Pitching Duel

Brown Stars on Hill, At Plate for Locals

Pitching highlighted Circleville Tournament action last night when the Circleville All-Stars beat Worthington, 1-0.

The winners carded one single and Worthington managed three.

The Circleville All-Stars scored the only tally of the game in the first inning. Dick Walters, hitting in the second slot, walked. Bryce Brown followed with the single and Walters scored.

Brown hurled the entire game for the winners. He walked five batters and fanned 17, while issuing three safeties.

James was on the mound for the losing Worthington unit. He walked four and fanned eight batters.

EACH pitcher received solid support from his teammates — both squads committing double plays, and both allowing one error.

Zeidana, Belknap and Jones tagged losing singles.

Muskingum Collegian Handed Indian Bonus

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians announced today the signing of Roger Post of Muskingum College to a bonus contract.

A 20-year-old shortstop, he won All-Ohio Conference honors the past two seasons and batted .440 for Muskingum this past year.

Post, a right-handed batter, signed a 1965 contract with Duquesne of the Class A Midwest League, a Cleveland farm club. The size of the bonus was not disclosed.

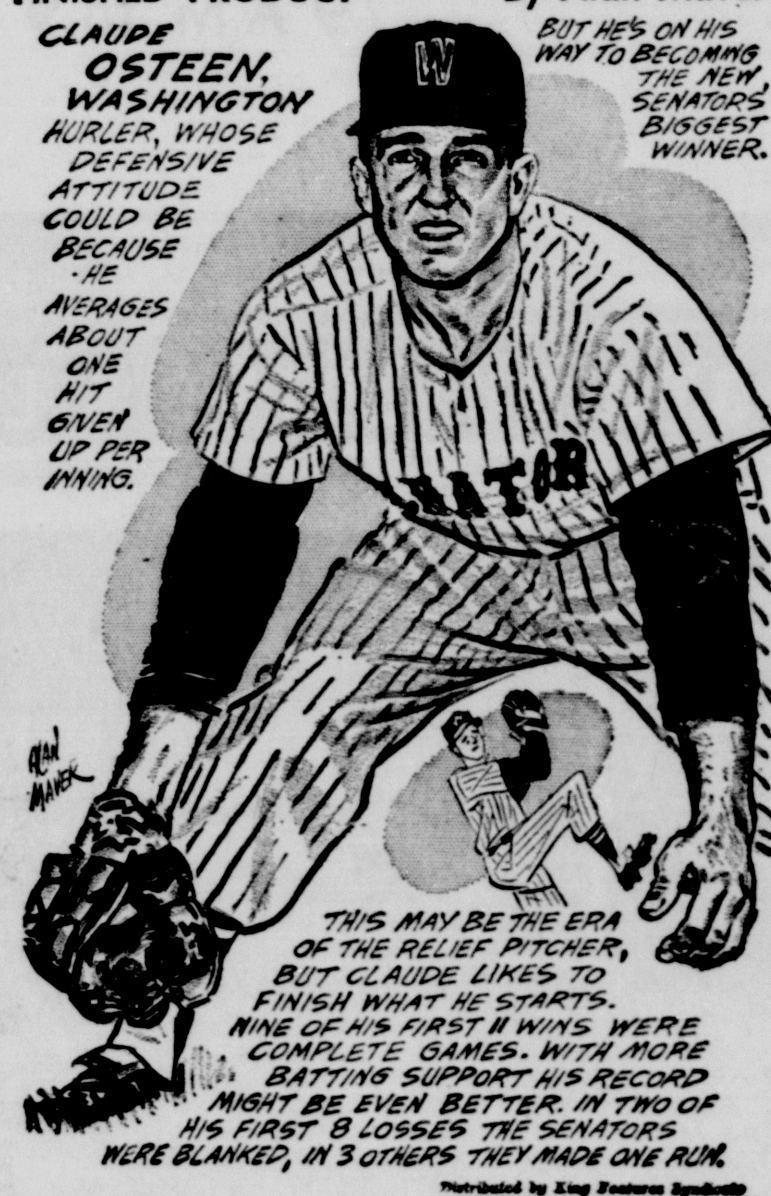

Ohio Golfer Second In United Golf Test

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Defending champion Lee Elder of Cleveland, Ohio, was in the second spot today as the third round of the United Golf Association's national open tournament got under way. Elder shot a second round 67 Wednesday, one more than the leader, Willie Brown of Houston, Tex., who had a 66.

Renee Powell of East Canton, Ohio, remained the odds-on favorite to win the women's amateur event. She beat Carrie Jones of Jackson, Miss., 5 and 4, Wednesday.

Former assistant Army coach Tom Harp is in his fourth season as Correll's football coach.

Big Money Sign Up at Trapshoot

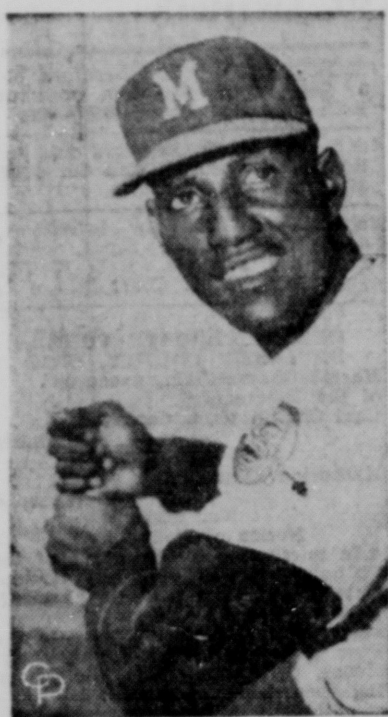

VANDALIA, Ohio (AP)—The big money sign went up today at the 65th Grand American Trapshoot as the week-long clay target carnival moved into the handicap phase after three days of 16-yard events.

On tap today was the preliminary handicap, a 100-clay event in which the shooters, according to their averages or known ability, are stationed 18 to 27 yards behind the trap house from which the flying targets emerge.

This one has an entry fee of $45.50 and the marksmen can toss another $31 into the optional system under which he can wager on his own prowess against the field. The winner can pick up around $7,000, and about 2,900 from all over the country were scheduled to try for it.

Today's event is a dress rehearsal for the game's No. 1 event, the Grand American Handicap, scheduled Friday.

The 16-yard competition ended Wednesday with Buford C. Bailey of Big Springs, Neb., capturing the big prize—the North American Clay Target Championship.

BRAVES' NEW HERO—A sizzling hitting rampage has moved Rico Carty, rookie outfielder of the Milwaukee Braves, into the N.L. batting race competition and a shot at "rookie of the year" honors. Carty, a reformed catcher, is from the Dominican Republic and hit .327 for Austin last year. He's 6'2" tall and bats and throws righthanded.

quarterback, Roman Gabriel.

"We expect to improve on last year, largely because our quarterback, Gabriel, will have more experience," said Svara at the Rams' camp.

The Rams lost their first five games last fall. Then they turned around and won five of their next seven beating San Francisco twice and Detroit, Baltimore and Minnesota once each. The word around the National Football League was that the Rams were to be feared in 1964.

Ben Wilson's decision to pass up pro football for dentistry after a fine rookie year left a gaping hole at the fullback position. Svara has been switching his backs around, trying to come up with a replacement for Wilson. It might turn out to be Dick Bass, the halfback who shared the heavy duty ground work with Wilson last year.

This is the third year for Gabriel, the former North Carolina State quarterback. Progress has been slow but steady. After winning the job late in 1962, he gave way to rookie Terry Baker for last year's opener but soon reclaimed the job. Carroll Dale and Jim Phillips are the top receivers. Svara beefed up his offensive line considerably when he traded Jon Arnett, who has been hobbled by leg injuries for a couple of seasons, to the Chicago Bears.

The Rams got Roger Davis, a Bear starter at guard for four seasons, to go with Charlie Cowan, Joe Seibelli and Don Chuy at that position. They also gained a third offensive center, Joe Wendryhoski, and Frank Budka, a rookie defensive back from Notre Dame.

The other centers are Ken Kirk and Art Hunter. Joe Carroll and Frank Varrichione are set at offensive tackle.

Many pro football experts think the Rams' defensive line of Dave Jones and Lamar Lunday at the ends, and Rosey Grier and Merlin Olsen at the tackles are the best in the league. Stan Fanning and rookie Gary Larsen back them up.

Jack Pardee, Mike Henry and the veteran Cliff Livingston are the starting linebackers with relief from Marv Harris, a good looking rookie from Stanford.

Rookie Jerry Richardson of West Texas State, No. 3 draftee, and Bobby Smith will be the corner backs on defense with Lindon Crow and Ed Meador at safety. Scotti may reclaim a corner job when he is healthy.

Orioles Find Indians Tough In 8th Inning

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Baltimore Orioles will be lucky if they can get out of the Cleveland Indians' eighth inning with the American League pennant.

The Indians edged the first-place Orioles 3-2 Wednesday night, scoring two runs in the eighth inning for the victory. The loss, coupled with Chicago's 2-1, 12-inning triumph over Minnesota, sliced Baltimore's lead to one percentage point over the second-place White Sox.

The victory, the Indians' sixth straight, increased their season edge over Baltimore to 10-5, making them the only team to hold an edge over the league leaders. More specifically, though, the Indians have won five of the last six games with Baltimore in the eighth inning.

A five-run outburst in the eighth Tuesday night brought Cleveland a 5-3 decision. Wednesday night's game was tied 1-1 going into the eighth.

Slow-footed John Romano sent the tie-breaking run across with a two-out, two-strike bunt single, a surprise move he pulled on his own. Vic Davalillo followed with a run-scoring double.

Explaining the rare squeeze bunt, Romano said:

"I can't hit (relief pitcher Stu) Miller anyway, so I had to do something."

Baltimore Manager Hank Bauer, however, didn't have any explanation for the Indians' eighth-inning tactics.

Elsewhere in the AL, Washington blanked New York 2-0, Detroit defeated Boston 4-1 and Los Angeles knocked off Kansas City 5-2.

In the National League, Philadelphia ripped Milwaukee 6-1, New York defeated Cincinnati 3-1, Los Angeles nipped San Francisco 2-1, St. Louis trimmed Pittsburgh 4-2 and Chicago beat Houston 3-1.

Lowly Mets Send Redlegs Reeling Again

CINCINNATI (AP)—The New York Mets set the Cincinnati Reds reeling, with pennant hopes dented Wednesday night.

It was another victory for the deep-in-the-cellar Mets. The score was 3-1 and dropped Cincinnati seven games behind National League-leading Philadelphia.

Joey Jay, riding a five-game winning streak, tried unsuccessfully for the third time to defeat Casey Stengel's club. He was removed in the seventh with two out and trailing 3-0.

The Reds, held to five hits by Tracy Stallard who has an unimpressive record of 8-16, had few chances to go ahead. Their best opportunity came in the ninth, but they could not deliver.

Ed Krieanpool, whose error helped Cincinnati defeat New York on Tuesday night, was both a batter and a field hero Wednesday night. He drove in two runs, one on a single and the other on a sacrifice fly, and on another occasion saved a run with a diving stop.

The only run Stallard gave was Don Pavletich's fifth homer of the season. That came in the seventh.

Cincinnati had a chance to pull it out in the ninth when, with one out, Stallard walked both Vada Pinson and Frank Robinson. Deron Johnson was called out on strikes on a three-two pitch and Pavletich grounded out to end the threat.

Jack Buckley, engineering honor student at Duke, is passing up pro basketball for graduate work at Johns Hopkins University. He had been drafted by the Los Angeles Lakers.

'Greatest Sports Thrill'

Saxbe Recalls Day His Shotgun Starred

For The Associated Press

In every sport, contestants have days when they are, or feel like, champions.

In golf, on those days, the ball goes exactly where you want it. In trapshooting the gun seems to point itself. You wonder why it was so difficult only yesterday.

My big day in trapshooting came in 1960.

One of the clay target sport's oldest groups is the Okoboji Indians, good sports and good shots, organized in Iowa at the turn of the century. My dad was a member, and I attended one of their pow-wows when I was in knee britches.

In the early days their shoots were held at Cedar Point, Ohio, and practically all the great marksmen were on hand, as members or guests.

The prizes did not have the money value of the Grand American events, but there was prestige galor in winning one of the huge rotating trophies. Everyone looked longingly at them and vowed to "get my name on there next year."

I became a full-fledged member in 1959 and, adorned in a feathered headpiece, won the "costume event" that year after a 75-target shootoff. Next day, in the Indian Handicap, I missed seven targets for an also-ran spot.

In 1960 the annual pow-wow was at Greenbrier in West Virginia. I had not been shooting well for several weeks, and had few hopes.

The big event, the Indian Handicap, was on Saturday. I played golf in the morning, arrived late at the shooting grounds, and figured it was a waste of ammunition to compete.

But, despite the exhausting golf match, a hurried lunch, not too much sleep the night before, and out of breath from hurrying to the firing line with my squad, I powdered the first target. Got the next four, too, and moved to the next peg.

I was shooting fast, and it felt good. I broke the first 25. We moved to the next trap, and another 25 straight. Fifty in a row from my handicap yardage is not unheard of, but it was unusual and darned good shooting.

Everyone else was missing, and I—walking on air—kept telling myself, "This can't go on."

A crowd began to gather behind me. That didn't help. That lump that all contestants know came up in my throat. But I continued to break 'em, angles, climbers and straightaways.

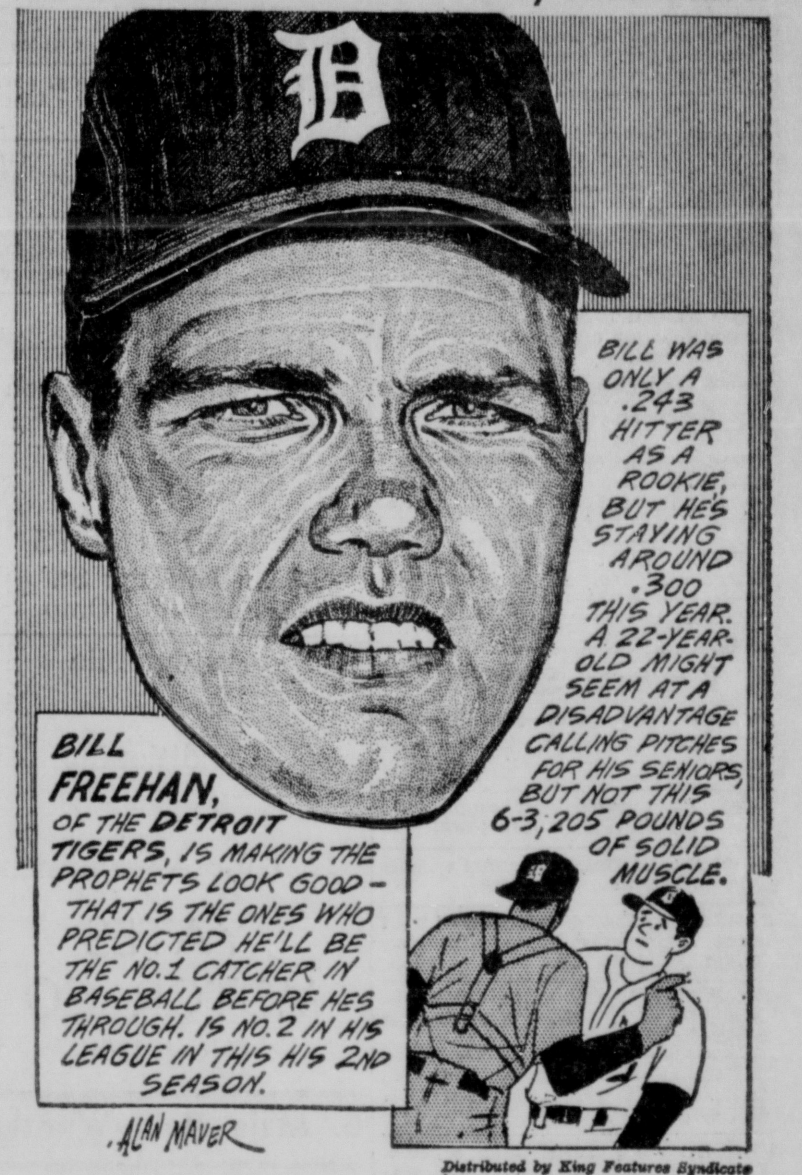

Then it happened—on the 65th target I swung too slowly and missed. Then I was victimized by the most fatal of shooting errors—I worried about the one I had just missed, and I missed another.

Then I dug in and finished with 23 of 25—but I had 25 to go and knew I could miss another half-dozen unless I held myself together.

To my surprise, it was effortless breaking the last ones—24 of 25—for 97 of 100. As I finished my friends rushed out to congratulate me. My closest competitor had finished with 94, and I had won the most coveted of the Okoboji trophies by three targets.

I've shot better scores since that wonderful day, but the win at Greenbrier will always live as my greatest thrill.

In the early days their shoots were held at Cedar Point, Ohio, and practically all the great marksmen were on hand, as members or guests.

The prizes did not have the money value of the Grand American events, but there was prestige galore in winning one of the huge rotating trophies. Everyone looked longingly at them and vowed to "get my name on there next year."

I became a full-fledged member in 1959 and, adorned in a feathered headpiece, won the "costume event" that year after a 75-target shootoff. Next day, in the Indian Handicap, I missed seven targets for an also-ran spot.

In 1960 the annual pow-wow was at Greenbrier in West Virginia. I had not been shooting well for several weeks, and had few hopes.

The big event, the Indian Handicap, was on Saturday. I played golf in the morning, arrived late at the shooting grounds, and figured it was a waste of ammunition to compete.

But, despite the exhausting golf match, a hurried lunch, not too much sleep the night before, and out of breath from hurrying to the firing line with my squad, I powdered the first target. Got the next four, too, and moved to the next peg.

I was shooting fast, and it felt good. I broke the first 25. We moved to the next trap, and another 25 straight. Fifty in a row from my handicap yardage is not unheard of, but it was unusual and darned good shooting. Everyone else was missing, and I—walking on air—kept telling myself, "This can't go on."

A crowd began to gather behind me. That didn't help. That lump that all contestants know came up in my throat. But I continued to break 'em, angles, climbers and straightaways.

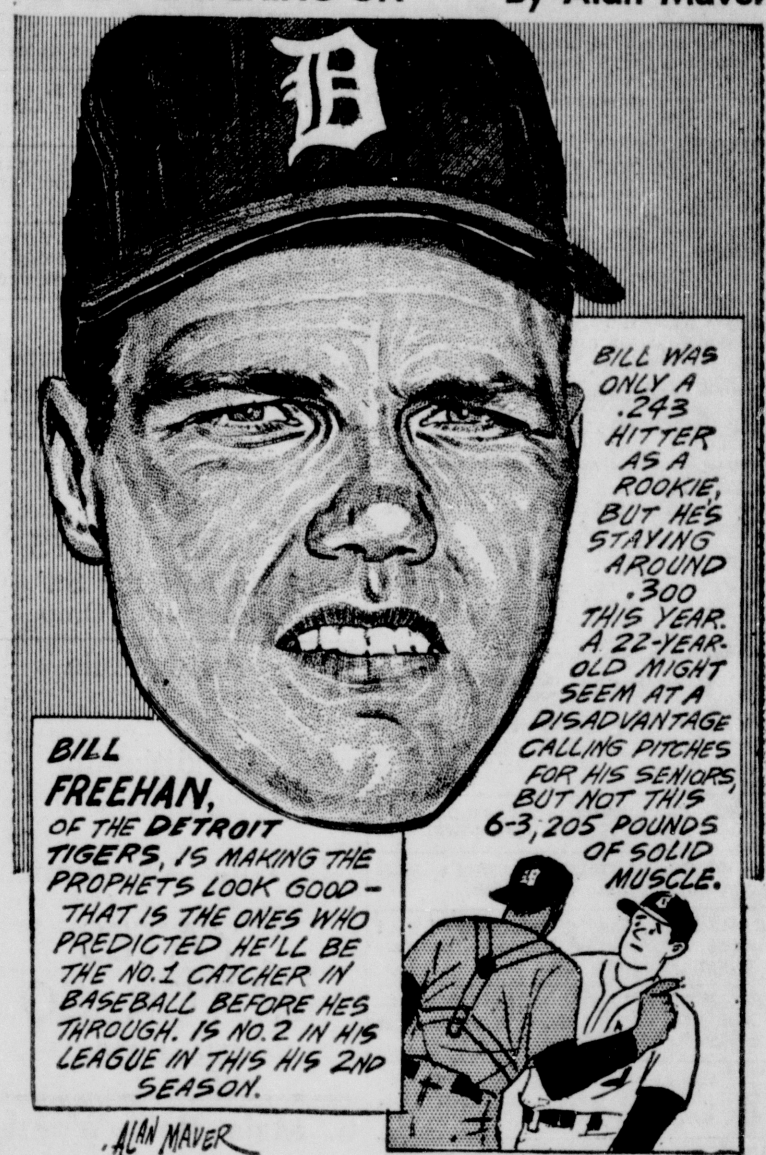

Then it happened—on the 65th target I swung too slowly and missed. Then I was victimized by the most fatal of shooting errors—I worried about the one I had just missed, and I missed another.

Then I dug in and finished with 23 of 25—but I had 25 to go and knew I could miss another half-dozen unless I held myself together.

To my surprise, it was effortless breaking the last ones—24 of 25—for 97 of 100. As I finished my friends rushed out to congratulate me. My closest competitor had finished with 94, and I had won the most coveted of the Okoboji trophies by three targets.

I've shot better scores since that wonderful day, but the win at Greenbrier will always live as my greatest thrill.

Johnson Claims Middle Ground In Campaign

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) —Lyndon B. Johnson, who often refers to himself as "president of all the people," now wants to be candidate of all the people.
Any attempt to assess the campaign tactics of the just-nominated Democratic standard bearer is apt to founder unless weighed against Johnson's aim to claim the broad middle ground on the political battlefield and appeal to just about everyone.

In his contest with Sen. Barry Goldwater, Johnson will try to picture the Republican presidential nominee as being far removed from the mainstream of American political thought.

As Senate Democratic leader and during nine months as president, he has sought to represent a broad consensus of attitudes on key issues. He made it his stated policy nearly three months ago.

Addressing the graduating class at the University of Texas, Johnson said the American people share the same deep desires—for peace, justice and a better life.

"This is the real voice of America," he asserted. "And it is one of the great tasks of political leadership to make our people aware of this voice, aware that they share a fundamental unity of interest and purpose and belief."

This was a prepared-in-advance speech, which added something to the significance of his next words:

"I am going to try and do this. And on the basis of this unity, I intend to try and achieve a broad national consensus which can end obstruction and paralysis, and can liberate the energies of the nation for the work of the future."

However, lest anyone get the idea from this that Johnson plans a nonpartisan campaign, it is well to recall his off-the-cuff remarks at a Democratic fund-raising dinner in Minneapolis, Minn., on June 27.

From the moment he became president last Nov. 22 upon the assassination of John F. Kennedy, Johnson has energetically sought the backing of all segments of the populace.

More than any Democrat in recent decades, Johnson has achieved a signal success in wooing influential business leaders. Henry Ford II is a notable example. This auto magnate never before backed a Democrat for the presidency, but he's backing Johnson.

Any attempt to build a consensus inevitably involves a delicate balancing act — something at which Johnson is an old hand.

But if Johnson now has friends that would have seemed unlikely nine months ago, he also has lost friends.

Although his steadfast support for the civil rights cause has cost him some support, he is counting on his personal assessment that the ideal of racial justice is supported by the great majority of voters. And he rarely fails to appeal directly to those who resist the idea.

Racial justice is a key goal of Johnson's Great Society which, he says, would bring "abundance and liberty for all."

The Great Society also represents the better life—"a place where every family has a roof over its head, a rug on the floor, a picture on the wall and a little music in the house."

And he is deeply committed to his antipoverty program which Goldwater has labeled a vote-getting scheme.

There are other Great Society proposals, too, that surely will be debated during the campaign: health insurance for the aged, aid to education, expanded minimum wage coverage; in fact, a broad gamut of social measures. And the Republicans have made it clear that they will be talking about foreign policy.

Greater stress on economy in government is one of the personal touches that Johnson has added to the program he inherited from Kennedy. The poverty program also was fashioned under his direction.

He undertook at least one other major initiative in the domestic field: his efforts, successful against great odds, to avert the threat of a national rail strike last winter.

Yet Johnson has expended most of his energy in behalf of inherited measures: the biggest tax cut in history, the broadest civil rights law in a century and a variety of lesser items.

For the early enactment of these, Johnson can claim much of the credit.

In foreign affairs, Johnson swung into 1964 promising an "unrelenting peace offensive." This has yet to bear significant fruit. At midyear, he spent a lot of time trying to avert war over Cyprus between Greece and Turkey.

And, throughout the year, he wrestled with other crises — and more ominous ones — in Laos and Viet Nam, as well as flare-ups in Panama and Cuba.

Have nine months in the White House changed Lyndon Baines Johnson? There are small signs of change.

Johnson's oft-repeated rallying cry during the early months — "I need your help" — has been muted of late. Whether this reflects a more sure-footed Johnson or simply the passing of a time of national crisis isn't entirely clear.

In one respect, Johnson almost surely has changed. He seems less sensitive to press criticism than was the case earlier in the year.

Johnson's progress has been onward and upward since he first went to Washington in 1933 as secretary to a Texas House member.

And success has followed him in his private life. He and his family have managed to amass a fortune listed at $3,484,000. The figure comes from a report drawn up at his direction by an accounting firm. Published estimates of the Johnson family fortune have ranged as high as $14 million.

Some Republican campaigners are focusing on these figures. And some of them have been hearkening to Johnson's ties with Bobby Baker, his old friend and onetime protégé whose financial dealings have been castigated by Senate investigators.

Johnson was not born to wealth. And he likes to remind audiences of his modest beginnings. He talks often about being the son of a tenant farmer, usually failing to mention that his father also was a schoolteacher and five-term member of the Texas Legislature. Johnson sees himself as a man of the people who understands their needs and wants and who can lead them into the Promised Land of the Great Society.
